isn't that basically the same for all "freedom fighter" groups?

It wasn't the state, it was the local commune, more precisely a randomly elected members of the commune law enforcers (basically like a police militia where members only work 6 months and then take a break for 2 years while the new people do the next 6 months term. This is to prevent consolidation of power and the superiority complex). This system, however, doesn't exist in all of Equai as of now, it's only implemented in the socialist states of Ushush and Astait (where the accident took place). The plans and platforms for which current president Felicity Silvestri ran her campaign for re-election is that if Felicity Silvestri is to be re-elected this system would take place across all of Equai where at the end the Federation will stop being about states and become a large federation, or confederation of many communes with decentralized AI planned economy

I went into too much details
