I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

This is how I've felt recently with the lack of rain. Thankfully it started to rain yesterday, even if I still want something like a downpour instead of what we got to thoroughly soak everything again.

I seriously need to buy my grandpa more The Black Keys if he hasn't bought it himself already. They are a band I showed him that he actually instantly loved, like I expected him to, so I bought him an album as a gift. Now there are 2 bands/artists on my mind that I need to show him (Tom Waits to see if he likes it because it seems possible and Lanterna for more chill rock reasons because I know he enjoys that too and I think he might like it), and more The Black Keys.

I NEED MONEY DAMNIT!
