The dossier we have on this particular woman is incredibly vague, and what we get is the pure essentials, but from what I know, she is an enigma of a mind. She claims to be caring and kind, but tramples upon practically anyone who opposes her, and according to the words I'm reading, she also makes a hobby of starting conflicts, which I hope are for the favour of the entire nation and its' people rather than for sick amusement. Also, a socialist monarch? That's new... I mean, we do favour a good Christian monarchy, but one that takes on the Marxist economic stature and culture? We have nothing against communist nations, don't get me wrong, this is just a new one. And as for her desire to bring her country to greatness... I fear it may be her downfall if she takes the wrong steps, but she may barely just be able to maneuver her way out of trouble as she's managed to hold on to her lands while going Robespierre on everyone who opposes her or disagrees with her in a slight manner, which heed I remind isn't exactly the best way to assert authority over one's territory. Killing those you disagree with will cause more people to have a negative outlook, and you'll have an image no better than that of a serial killer. The things we do in the past... they stick with us for life."

"Baldassar Cagliares is an arrogant fool that has radical xenophobic beliefs that may yet prove the downfall of himself and his nation. He has no ethical or moral standpoints beyond those that he was taught in his little cult, and he has yet to experience the full wonders of the soul and human mind. He has a little-to-no understanding of God and His mysterious ways, either. To deny people social justice, the right to free will, the right to self-imposed independence-- it's maddening, it's sickening, it's anti-Belecthorian."

News: Days after the coronation of Queen Rose I, fifteen Senators have mysteriously vanished after returning to the Capital from a conference in Christine City. Among them is Phillip "Fighting Phil" Paddock, the Chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, who at 98 is the eldest member of the current Senate. President Hinterland issued a short statement of support, joined by Her Majesty the Queen, as the government has executed a number of orders to prioritize the search for the Senators.

Report and Opinion of Jeane Sabre

Prince of the Zora, Ralis

"Hello hello everyone here! Anyone remember me, huh? Well, I haven't forgotten Forum 7, not y e t ! 😊 Anyways, what I'm trying to say is it's been quite a while since I've last decided to go and explore this place and bring my own input into it, you know? A lot of stuff has happened so that should hopefully explain why I haven't been here up until now, but uhm... Yep, let's move on before this topic of "me returning" gets really boring! I don't think I'd hear the end of it from a certain Regent's Sister, after all!

So, today I'm going to be talking about... Oh, Jaddi! Jadwiga, sorry. I like giving nicknames to people here and then, it's kinda fun and it's just another way to be friendly, which is of course what I try to do. But fancy

seeing you here! I remember seeing you here
and there in...
You know where, don't you? But you come over here
and talk about Yunnie no less?!
And at the very least, aren't hurting loads of insults to her,
even if you're still being a bit
cruel to her,
uhm That's good?
Honestly, I'd
love to get the chance to know about you a little further,
Jadwiga...
Jeane? Do you
not like me
calling you by your old, more native name? I should probably ask, I don't know if calling
you what I'm calling you is rude or not, I...
Guess I will just stick with Jeane for now, sorry. But without further
ado!

So, you were a part of a large family that traces it's origins to a place called
"Poland", yes?
Well, I can not say I know what a Poland is but the whole
mention of this WW1, which
uhm.. Is one of those "Ws"
supposed to mean War? It doesn't sound like it was by choice. I... Wish I could say the same thing, honestly. About the large family
more than the

forced move
from Poland, that is. I was the only child,
and for most of my life I only had Mother,
before she...
She, you know?

Passed away...
I uhm... I-I'm sorry, the memory still haunts me. I'll try to battle
through it
though, I shouldn't try to pretend it doesn't exist or just let it pass.
I'll try to continue this.
Uhm.. Okay,
so you followed
the tradition of your family members and their jobs by joining this
"United States
Air Force"
thing, which I assume is like an Army of sorts? Well, not before getting,
as the person
who wrote
about you here
said personally;
"enamored" by the rule of a guy called Franco, and...
Wait, yeah I know who he is,
surprisingly enough! I uhm... I'm not sure that's a guy you should worship, honestly but I don't think I'd change your mind. So it says here that before even USAF service
you were a Teacher's Assistant? That
sounded like a respectable
position and honourable
enough, helping youngsters find their way through

learning about stuff. Why stop and instead join a more barbaric profession? Oh, speaking of barbaric, it seems like you forgot a little something something during your service. You know, it's a cool thing called Human Life? You flew "bombers", whatever they are over a place called Vietnam, and you and your nation bombed it to the ground, innocent people and all without much recourse? I uhm.. I don't mean to judge you too harshly, you could've just been following orders but. I just hope the people there have recovered well enough. And sorry if I'm skipping over a lot of details about your service, it's basically because there's a lot of it I just don't understand very well... Like, what's an "A-10 Warthog" or a "F-22 Raptor" when it's at home? And getting "Shanghai'd" ? What?!

So, after quitting that job, which I'd personally say good riddance if it was me, you did some stuff in something called the CpUSA for a while and turned a lot of people who participated in it to believe in what you believe, which... Good job, I guess? Before actually getting a position of leadership over your realm! Congrats, Jeane! Honestly, I can get behind some of the stuff you did. Granted, I don't have much context or knowledge on most things that have been talked about because... Well, have you seen my world?! My Dimension?! But from what I can understand, stuff like tackling this "financial crime" thingmy and stopping employee abuse, and increasing healthcare across your realm That's quite nice of you to do, I think... Of course, not everything you did is something I can say "good job!" on though, and please don't think I'm saying this because I'm a Prince; a part of Royalty or as you and your role model like to oh so affectionately call us; a Blueblood. It's just uhm, some of the stuff you put into place during this "presidency" thing is quite... Well, bad. I mean, I like what you was trying to combat;

violence and
division but in the way you did it? It's all just brutish and unjustified, I think! Like,
forcing your people to have to endure
massive amounts of surveillance
and constant attacks across the country, or world for that matter as you
mention
propping up
"rebellion
groups" and stuff is just...
Well, I don't know if I can say wrong
because as I said, I'm not too knowledgeable
on the world
you live in, but it seems a little overboard and unnecessary,
right. It seems like your drive
and beliefs
really got the better of you in some instances
as you
approached the situations you came across as if only the most radical option
was the ones that would work...

I... Think I'll
move on a little bit now.
Eventually you
retired after
even yourself
realising that some of the stuff you did
was a bit
overboard, which I mean. I like that you
self-reflected,
Jeane! Either
way, sometime
during all of this you married
with Alexander and had some kids of your own?

Congratulations!
I really hope that you all are doing well and looking after each other!
And now you have a bit of an easy life
mothering four children and all of that.
Honestly, I
think I'll look upon you a little better if I knew for certain that you're really treating your
four tots well,
and I'm hoping
it's the case.
Family's really important after all, and having it
be stripped away; in whatever way
that happens is just... Awful! I...
I know.

Okay, I'm going to finish it off now... The memory keeps
cropping back up and I... I think I need some time. Take care, Jeane.
Jadwiga. Uhm,
be a good
mother to your children, would you? See you later...

"Insignificance - there is nothing I find more lowly than that. And little is more lowly than an 'emperor' like this one. You succeeded your uncle and did what, exactly? Visits to leaders of states more important than yours? You are limited, it seems, by your own innate insignificance. You prattle on about liberty, about justice, yet where is your action? Your deeds are silent - I am not even sure if there are any deeds to speak of - and your words are hollow, disingenuous, to those few who will listen. You are weak, your institution is weak, your state is weak - so you hide behind pretty words and slogans. You will be forgotten in two centuries - which I would normally consider a tragedy, but, in your case, I make an exception." - Emperor Nicholas

for AN:

"It is a sort of personal philosophy of mine that - cruel as it may sound - a leader must first suffer. To me, suffering is not - say - stubbing your toe on a wall, or spilling hot tea on yourself, no; the suffering that a leader must endure, and learn to command, is this burning, black, thing that fills your entire body. The kind of pain that lights all of your nerves on fire one by one, the kind that you can never forget and never stop feeling. Perhaps that is simply a little part of me that is nihilistic, or perhaps I'm on to something with that belief.

"I suppose, a crisis of the scale - when compared to the scale of his own civilisation - faced by you might be a suitable suffering. My emphasis is placed on 'might', for suffering is not the only thing a good ruler needs. You seem unbowed by it, for the most part, and this is good - but it does beg the question of whether or not you truly understand, whether or not you truly feel along with those you lead. Whether or not you let this crisis change you is your own choice - or it should be. Learn from it, harness it, then use it to advance. As you are now, you are sitting back, you are putting yourselves at risk. When the wounds heal, they will scar, but you will have learned nothing from them. Cut deep, cut hard, learn from your enemies and from your friends, destroy yourselves so you can build back newer and stronger.

"Hmm, what am I doing? You have chosen your path, I believe, there is not turning off it now. No matter. Heed my warning: I have seen many like you before, they all ended the same way - by my hand." - Emperor Nicholas

Welcome to the Dunwich Las Vegas Branch Offices, a "nation" inside a single building in New Vegas. (Might be more apt to call it a "death trap" than a building, though.)

We're best known for our feuding gangs, widespread practice of cannibalism, chronic mental illness, radiation poisoning, rampant chem abuse, and people killing each other just for food and water. But did you know that we also have non-Euclidian geometries, social experiments, a rich history of conspiracy and sordid affairs, eldritch horror, and chems made from modified FEV?

Come to the Dunwich Las Vegas Branch Offices! You'll be violently assaulted by starving cannibals in 30 minutes or less! Guaranteed!

Familicide? I think you must be confused. It's easy, there was a lot going on in Cheries in the 40's and 50's, but how did you come to the conclusion that Tārānis II was responsible for any familicide? If you're referring to Pāine IX, he was killed during the sack of Pēloš, during which Tārānis II was part of his army. Tārānis II later deserted and left for Vhal, and returned to depose his father, but no familicide was involved; Tārānis I (his father) was exiled to Hrop.

IS IT REAL? OK?

IF YOU'VE PUT THAT MUCH THOUGHT INTO IT...

Well, I'll be frank with you, Nick. Your idea is lame, with a capital L, just like your predecessors' that got created for being really incompetent political assets of an out-moded institution, Labour. I feel sorry for those that'd vote for you. What kind of cuck actually takes pride in being rhetorically owned by the political equivalent of semi-nude nannies? What kind of reliable and assuring qualification is being born popped out of a Royal...even...four-letter-word? Well, the answer, Nick, is that the Monarch finds all those objectively true.

"Put it through your thick 'anointed' skull: the Bolsheviks' followers had legitimate grievances and your predecessors' glorious system couldn't resolve or wasn't willing to. That's why they put bullets through Nicky's thick skull.

Unless you're a perfect, objective, impartial being...I'd advise against overthrowing an autocrat only to exercise autocratic power. Otherwise, you'd just replace an echo chamber with another one. 'Cause, if you're serious about meritocracy, be way more transparent about things than the usual 'semi-constitutional' monarchies tend to be. Condescending elites are hardly good arbiters and the people are a lot more capable than what many let on to believe."

"The bolsheviks had legitimate grievances, but does that justify the millions that died under their regime just to fulfill a goal that could've been achieved through the course of time? Was Stalin's Five-Year plan such a good idea to begin with? I admit that my great grandfather Nicholas wasn't up to the task of actually maintaining the empire mostly because of his own hubris, but had he learned his lessons way earlier then maybe the Russian civil war would not have happened in the first place. The Duma was practically on the way to become the new Parliamentary Government of the Tsardom and yet the Bolsheviks and the Communists had to go fuck it all up. The Tsar at the time might've been responsible for the deaths of protesters that rallied in the winter palace, but compared to what the Communists did decades later: Gulags, the NKVD, the Holodomor, along with millions of deaths under their oppressive regime. I'd side myself with the Monarchy any day of the week.."

Paramount Leader
Zhao Xuefeng

"Okay... So, this 'Jaguar Aquilion' person claims to be the son of a Roman god and the grandson of a Greek goddess. What historical period is he supposed to live in? Anyway, he's formerly military personnel and presently President of the 'Romanic Imperium', which despite the name is apparently not ruled by an Emperor."

"You know what, reading through the rest of his file, I grow increasingly convinced that this isn't a real person. His supposed ancestry, the description of his personality and, ah, musculature, not to mention his apparent portal-based superpowers, strike me as the sort characteristics one might attribute to a c-list superhero from one of those old comic books. Seriously, he even has this whole 'dark side' thing. I'm beginning to suspect that this is some sort of practical joke. Who gave me this file?"

His opinion: (Negative)

"Oh great, a Marxist. I can already feel the seething anger of my fellow political party members knowing this. Anyways so far this Paramount Leader was raised in a middle class family, rather ironic since China at the time was a communist state and yet embraced capitalist elements. A Biotech scholar, well that proves to be interesting. Although later on in his life and eventually his rise to power he changed his stance into being a Transhumanist? oh that bodes ill, and i do not know why.

"In all nations - whether primitive like his, or advanced like mine - there are figures just like this Romanov gentleman. They see their present society's decay, they see their people's pain, and they feel that the best way to fix their problems is to repeat exactly what made them happen all over again. The answer to the question, 'how do we solve our present crisis,' is not 'just go back a century and hope it doesn't happen again.' I suppose I am a pessimist at heart - centuries of insurgent warfare does that to a man - but all his talk of democracy, of rights, of freedoms, rings hollow to me. Again, perhaps I am jaded, but Emperor Nicholas - a man whose true colours I have seen - also espouses a belief in inalienable rights, freedoms, in meritocracy, and that could not be further from the truth.

"I hope I am wrong. I often prefer to not be right in my analyses of politicians. From my belief, he is an opportunist waiting for a chance to seize power in this Russia - a land he is not native too, but as far as criticisms go that is hardly an adequate one. I have fought against a man for centuries who did something similar. This Romanov gentleman Inogo Estima: Wait a minute? Isn't Alastair that fat lazy old alcoholic codger thats hated by his own liver? You look much healthier than him, now lets see what you have to offer... You know, after reading your history of battles and wandering around the abyss, starting the revolution from your eldritch horror of a home and your final boss battle with the admittedly a bit of a [redacted, british c-word] of a leader. Here' you are into republicanism, peace, freedom, anti capitalism.. I'm honestly impressed, yeah call me a liberal but those systems tend to guarentee the best standard of living. Well I think we can agree that absolute power corrupts.

Now tell me more about the eldritch horrors you saw down there. The thing on my doorstep rammed me in the gentlemen's area, not very eldritch but very painful indeed and for a 4000 year old guy you look healthy, you look like a 20 year old for fucks sake, not only that but both of us have the common interest on not being interested in anyone.

In conclusion, an interesting man with sensible views that tend to cause low mortality rates in the population, lets talk more shall we?

“Mr. Inogo Estima certainly seems to be quite the leader. To come from a humble background and end up as the leader of his country is an impressive feat. In particular, I would say that his administration's work in building up his country's infrastructure is certainly admirable. I have no doubt that he will be remembered as one of the most important men in his country's history.
