Final tests underway before grand opening of the Nová Praha-Červený Záliv high speed railway, months before scheduled opening

How is this happening?!

No way an infrastructure project will get accepted, much less it's going to start. Then there'll be endless corruption, so it won't be finished or it'll never be close to on time, and it's a mathematical impossibility for it to finish early.

Here, we strive to make steps towards regaining the respect lost due to the stains on our past. Our hope is to cleanse the world (or at least what's left of it) of those stains on our once formidable reputation.
