Simonia is getting a fourth region?

Uhhhhh, what are you going to do with it after you found a new region?

So far, Simonia's researchers have found out the benefits of the new region is that Simonia's economy, military, and scientific advancement will get a better, but the drawbacks of the new region is that Simonia-Orbis (that's the potential new region's name) will get into wars a lot more than Simonia-NationStates (which is the main setting for most of my stories and wars) and those wars would be a lot more destructive (disregarding the time Simonia-NationStates disappeared for a while). Unlike Simonia-NationStates, nations have to buy more land instead of the land being added automatically and population growth is a lot slower (for now). More information will be released in a dispatch in a few days.

Forgotten by those who don't give two damns about the United States Navy, maybe, but I'd say that not knowing about something in the first place means that one couldn't have really forgotten about it.

As I had no clue what the ship the AN is themed around was, this was helpful. While this isn't an actual part of the signature, I also note the 'I will just be here again for a bit' part was removed.
