Same here, from what I've heard so far. I've jammed a lot of Pelican recently and only a handful of Russian Circles songs, but I think I prefer the former.

At the moment, though, I'm listening to Led Zeppelin's IV album while studying up on a good way to do an acoustic cover of Battle of Evermore ☐

Listen to more Russian Circles, though (your ears will thank you for it). Also, doing an acoustic version of BoE that sounds good might be challenging.

Mogwai - Danphe and the Brain

My nation DOES NOT reflect my political views. The interplanetary-level Federation government is libertarian only for realism purposes, and functions more like a confederation. Since it has such a large territory to manage, the federal bureaucracy can only provide the bare essentials efficiently, while most other decisions are devolved down to the planetary governments.

True. Though, that doesn't really matter too much for me. But I do have to say I feel some Russian Circles songs fit that pretty well, but they definitely have some more that start off slower and whatnot {Melee, which I love for the bass part at the start and some other part within the song}

Me too, I only have that song and two others from the same album. As for that Rishloo you're listening too, I don't particularly like it when post-rock music is interposed with vocals that don't enhance the instrumentals or are too overpowering for my tastes.

I think Rishloo is considered progressive rock.

Anyway, I didn't really care for the vocals at first....but some of the weird stuff he does with his vocals. and the Tool influence in a few songs, they ended up growing on me quite a lot. That type of vocals have always been the type that has to grow on me at first. I lean towards instrumentals a lot.

Yeah, I plan to check out more Russian Circles in a bit. Right now, though, gotta stay with the Zeppelin. Someone posted a crappy tab for an acoustic version of BoE on ultimate-guitar, but it's something I can build on - needs variations on D (specifically Dsus and Dm) for the proscribed parts in the song, and I'm writing up a proper version with full lyrics sheet for strumming variation. Lacking a mandolin, I obviously won't be able to get the proper Led Zeppelin sound, but I've heard many a bad acoustic cover of the song on YouTube, and I think I can do better than them, at least. I need more content to push my channel over 10k views, and I'm kind of hoping this will do it :p

About the YT vids, the reason why I pointed out that it could be challenging was exactly because I searched acoustic BoE covers on YT when you first mentioned them, and they were all average at best. Good luck with your channel as well.

I have to go, now.
