Depends on the content. If they were straight up preaching genocide, it's jail up to five years, and blacklisted from running for political office. If it's just shouting slurs, some fines and community service will suffice.

How do you only manage to steal a single cent from a bank? Anyway, normal bank robberies would be a minimum of 10 years but due to the ridiculously low amount stolen, it'll be a day in jail and 1 month of community service

Bombing any government building, threatening to do so or doing anything that could destroy part of a government building will have you shot on the spot if the officer or government member is feeling "nice", most likely you'll be arrested and forced to do hard labour or used as cannon fodder..

Killing a influential government member or highly ranked military officer.

While it proably isn't a crime, define "LGBTQ+ Propaganda". If you do, I'll edit my post to address that specifically.

Not a crime. We're a-okay with mercenaries, AND we will usually accept all forms of "self-defense."

However, dead civilians or the unarmed caught in a cross fire will result in hard labor and a hefty fine.

Election fraud?

Not very specific crime, but probably a couple of months in prison as long as no patient was harmed in the process
