The North Pacifican Union, or NPU, is a interregional observer alliance of the UCPN open to democratic, active World Assembly (WA) members of The North Pacific. It is totally neutral in terms of economic ideology or system, and does not discriminate based on these factors. However, any nation that wishes to join must be democratic. Ministers must be active at least once every week

They use a reward-based system to encourage industrial efficiency, and gasp shock dismay it works better than punishing failure.

Also, they're essentially Filipino nazis, which means any Godulan touring the area miiiiiiight start a fight.

They follow a semi-elective form of autocracy in that the current Autocrat (here, the Emperor/Empress) appoints his successor, but in the event he does not, the Senate elects their "most capable" as the new emperor... which opens the question of how they find out who's the most capable.

According to Pliny the Younger, in ancient Times, the Frisians (or rather, their close neighbors the Chauci) lived on man-made hills (terps). According to other sources, the Frisians lived along a broader expanse of the North Sea (or the Frisian Sea) coast. Frisians appear to have been among the Germanic tribes who invaded Britain during the Migration period (Völkerwanderung) as Angles and Saxons traveled from their home base through Frisian territory to reach Great Britain.

Honestly your history is absolutely amazing

Despite having more fighter craft than the USAF has total aircraft they only operate 5 carriers, I guess that's because their goal within TANAN of peacekeeping is limited to North America.

Most of the aircraft was taken by Casmarran and Texan military personnel, in the Casmarran War. The US (or the UAK in terms of lore) had built more vehicles than it really had the manpower for, which caused a lot of them to collect dust in their hangars.

I should really make a factbook about that

They have ruled that traditional religion is inefficient, and have illegalized it. However, they do engage in some kind of esoteric reverence for the universal order of things and consider it through a seemingly mathematical and systematic process-as would be expected of a coalescence of machines.
