"Shakespearian insults, I can teach ya' then. Write em' down somewhere... This is one of my favorite: Thine face is not worth sunburning! Or, here is another for your vocabulary: I scorn you, scurvy companion. I think, I like ya', so here is another one for ya' to learn: Your brain is as dry as the remainder biscuit after voyage. Ya' can use them while judgin' those corrupt officials bastardos, who line their pockets at the expense of common folk. Jail is a fine punishment for that. Execution... well, if embezzlement caused deaths then it's fine. But... I think, that torture is just too cruel and inhumane. We condemn this practice and hope, that ya' will at least consider to cease it.

But, I commend those social policies and this protection agaisnt earthquakes will pay off not only during disasters. Strong buildings can be extremely useful during warfare, not to mention, that they will last longer and thus long term spendings on their renovations will be reduced. My summary opinion is rather positive."-Overboss Shawn Bjomson

"Well, Shawn, you were a lot of fun back then as a fellow anarchist in arms. But your recent concerns with our way of life makes me a little... tense, if you could say. But that's now in the past and there's a new friendship between Patagonia and Sky Reavers. In which this is the time for a toast between our two peoples as our beer bottles clink against one another... A nostalgic feeling which reminded me of a certain someone before. You don't compromise on your beliefs at the face of adversity and you seem wise enough to develop your conquered lands."

Avant-Gardeism? Sure, an art form, but as leadership? A bizarre idea, that's for sure. Certainly, one could make something out of it, but much like Dadaism and it's kin, it will be remembered as a footnote of mainstream history. Indeed, it is ridiculous a surrealist artist could even rule his own house, let alone a nation. Of course, control is not much an issue for you, what with your public decadence that would make the Pope cry, and an ego large enough that you could build a gallery out of it. If I must give a positive to the negative, as would be good practise, your so-planned military stunt would definitely improve your nation.

Princess-Sovereign of Hyrule, Zelda

"This... West Russian Federation. Is that what the place is called is a strange place to my mind... For you and your citizens use these strange mechanisms that are so powerful that it rivals the powers of our Gods, Goddesses and the Spirits of Light... Seemingly, this alien world is capable of creating telepathy, replacing a farmer, a labourer, a smith with these mechanical beasts instead?

Apologies, I am meant to comment on the person here, no? This Vasili Shagidzyanov? I do sincerely hope that I had pronounced that correctly. The man claims to be pro 'Stalinist'... Pro 'NKVD'? What in Hyliat's name does any of that mean? You insist on insulting and belittling the people of your world who without such action may very well be more cooperative should that have never been. In the absence of cooperation would be conflict, something that the Knight-General of Hyrule seems to be headed towards, if the rumours are to be believed. And in conflict comes violence, and perhaps even death.

And so, you prove that even in the days where these... Alien, powerful machines carry out the whims of your people for them, there will always be conflict. I would not claim that you would be willing to start official conflict, no. But the way you act... You may inadvertently bring conflict to you.

Now please, I must take my leave... Away from this strange world of mechanical inventions, huge buildings and strangely-dressed people.
No offense meant, of course!"

/ninja'd... Whoop... Well, I shall make you a response as well Alkodorian Empire, gimme a moment.

Ilu, Guard-Commander of Hyrule

... A man not of the womb of a loving mother, I see... For Victor von Stein, and I do hope that my pronunciations would not be incorrect, claims to have been a 'clone' of two other men. This is so very strange indeed, and I very much do not know how that would happen, some dark art perhaps and that certainly worries me.

Well, at the very least this 'Victor' seems to have good inspirations... For he looks uncannily similar to the Hero of Courage, whether intentional or not.

I feel pity and remorse for Victor von Stein, in a way... I support a strong army, by all means but what I cannot support is sacrificing that for humanity, as it seems that the 'creators' of von Stein had done with him. Instead of creating some strange mechanism, as the ancients of Hyrule had done for time to time, if the legends are to be believed, this 'Alkodorian Empire' had created a living, breathing and thinking Human Being, only to train and force so effectively that the man became almost as much as a puppet as the aforementioned mechanicals. That brings me horror. He believes that he is a part in a machine, and as far as I know had once attempted to retain humanity only to 'willingly' change to become this puppet after reconsideration... Victor, no man should be a puppet, no matter how just a cause may be. For in actuality, you are but a mere slave to your masters moreso than anything worth of respect, and that is the hard truth.

I pray to Hylia and the Light Spirits of Hyrule that perhaps mercy can still be shown for you. You may be... Unholy for being born without a mother, but you are still Human, I promise you.

everything. Now, to business, Zelda's past before Twilight crisis thingy is a mystery, classified data, and so far Spymaster Blackbird has yet to find anything about this time period... except... there are rumors of an artifact, called Triforce of Wisdom, something she uses quite often. I assume, that this device might be either used for gathering intel or perhaps data storage and access. There are also rumors, that divines helped her to become intelligent and charismatic, although, those deities might be a justification for Divine Right, an old world concept, where monarch has blessing of whatever god national faith believes in. But my gut says, these entities exist.

Not only that, but she also can cast spells, and skillfully. I am glad, that she follows a moral code, cause if she was malevolent, no one knows, what could have happened. So far, I will observe, study her and her rule and perhaps get to know her opinion on me."-Overboss Shawn Bjornson

"It is disappointing to see that Alfred is being removed from his office. He has crossed many boundaries to do what is right for his country. Despite the ethical concerns behind it, however, the results should always take precedent as ethics and morality is a civilian trait, and not a trait for strengthening a nation's international power and security for its mostly ungrateful citizenry that fail to see the big picture. Overall, his Emperor has made a grave and unwise decision that will surely weaken any chance for the Germans to maintain global projection. I recommend for Alfred to check his over his list of important connections to have a farewell party, and even an afterlife party to fully acknowledge his fierce patriotism and great achievement he has accomplished over the decades....In translation, stage a military coup de'tat. Do not let the inept control the fate of your country."

"Something is familiar about the guy, though I can't exactly pin where I've seen him before. Regardless, Viktor Von Stein is a monster produced by an autocratic empire. Yet, unlike most authoritarian strongmen, Viktor is a servile cretin, who brown-noses his emperor. And, he has the gall to claim that his brutal regime is 'civilized' and 'enlightened'. That his stranglehold over peoples across many worlds is some 'meritocracy'.

I'm glad that my world doesn't have to deal with the likes of him. Even if he tries to invade the free nations of my world, I will do everything in my power to resist his tyranny, and so will every citizen. We'll make his supposedly invincible war-machine crumble and water the tree of liberty with the blood of his army like how the patriots of yore made the Hessians bleed.

On another note, I find it strange that he promotes 'federalism'. I thought he'd want a unitary state to give more power to the central government of the empire.

Oh, and I find it funny that his empire likes to casually go nude. Yeah, I think we can beat those nudist sons of bitches."

It's an infinitely more efficient and reliable system than fucking capitalism. Unfortunately, Inogo Estima doesn't appear to be willing to go the whole way, instead favoring some 'mixed economy' rather than the complete abolition of parasitic corporations. This is unfortunate, as corporations only leech value from a society while contributing nothing worthwhile to it. Additionally, he supports free speech - ha, that's funny! And civil liberties? Ugh. But if we talk about more serious matters, her isolationism might be less tight than of her predecessor, but still it's gonna take us a nice effort to establish a trade route. Perhaps, we could persuade her, that not all humans are unkind to her kind. For example, our ideology allows non human sapients to have equal rights, join our cause, fight for us, establish business on our territory, or rise through the ranks. Even join the ruling council, if the individual proves himself worthy!

I could attempt to gain the audience with her, so I can use my charisma and diplomacy to persuade her to establish trade routes with us. And her tail... I like it. It's so fluffy!"-Shawn Bjornson

We seem to share several similarities, love of liberty, though I'm not sure how will you deal with my liberty with socialist characteristics, both seem to be "insane" warriors who have done rather risky things and have a lot of battle scars. I feel like I'm just a quiet and shorter version of you. Also what video games do you play? I'm genuinely curious.

Lastly, you like adrenalin sports? what kind of adrenalin sport do you do? Maybe go to vacation in Sherechia, even crossing the street there is an adrenalin sport."

Haber's Status: Generously given fourteen days until he gets kicked out by Oswald. Right now he's clinging onto dear life like Trump during his last days in office

"A sex worker is the incumbent leader of Lin-Ying? Absolutely degenerate, this shows the system is failing in that country when they let a [No] into office. And I suppose she must've promised her constituents good things? Was she their little bed bug? I will spend my last days in office spitting the [Also no], and no [Still no] will run this country unlike the people of Lin-Ying who voted for a-"
- The Honourable Imperial Chancellor of the Imperial Fatherland, Alfred Haber

Haber's opinion on the AL is vulgar to the point where the words censored out makes it look like a barcode

"...wow. What a waste of space. Title yourself as CEO of some sort of... state, and yet you can't be bothered to even run the place? Liberalism? What is this, 2021- oh, I suppose it is for you. Anyways, I can't say I approve of this sort of... hands-off treatment of governance. Leaders are meant to lead, not to look at ways to force the government not to lead; that's not ideology, that's just good business sense, dearie. Though I suppose someone who spent the first half of her adult life in your line of work wouldn't be effective at much other than being a pretty desk ornament."
