"First of all "folktolling" my American mind can't handle all these constant changes in speech words, I only speak American Borger Speak Danelaw. BORGER.

Now back to the relevant discussion...

According to their recent(?) statistics, the Population of Danelaw are largely comprised of Christian Believers making up 60% of the overall population, with the second-largest percentage (20%) of the population not holding any beliefs at all which is strange so to speak, are these people agnostic? atheist? some other thing? The remaining population hold a collection of other beliefs that I am actually a bit surprised maintain the "Heathendom" in their names, isn't that a bad thing to be considered a "Heathen"? have they decided to own it as a badge of pride or something?"

Apparently, the Dominion accepts near-damn everyone and has seen quite a lot, based on the lines of the Handbook, such as "Spies from another faction? Dime a Dozen!", so they don't really give a shit who you are, Saboteur, Rebel, Ranger, Red Guard, Minigunner, or Terrorist, because they've already seen it all and will still press you in either way.

One of their commanders decided to go on a joyride with some 80 star destroyers. A New Republic task force at Rehemsä caught them speeding and attempted to pull them over. The commander, Admiral Javison, tried throwing a few star destroyers in their path to hold them off while he escaped. He wound up hiding in some bushes, and the NR forces didn't have any K9 frigates to flush him out.

Admiral Javison escaped, but he and his friends never really lived it down.

The Caleshan Valkyries has listed official numbers of their population to be at staggering 30 billion people, 25-30% approximately of them considered 'combat-ready' while 3% are in active duty and carries their 'skills' with overzealous devotion. Needless to say, these numbers combined with their technology. The Caleshans are bound to obliterate most opposition they face in a event of total war.

It's actually Kehrnesian German (the dialect itself) and English. It's likely the formatting.

Somehow, they managed to infuse the opinions of a corrupt authoritarian despot and an anarchist ideologist to create a school of thought that calls for an environmentalist minarchy that builds bunkers for its classless, moneyless society against an inevitable nuclear war.

AN: The Shtetan Defense Force has a conscription law that drafts everyone at the age of 18 for 12 months. Its foreign suppliers, strangely, include Germany. Which is odd at best.

Apparently they had a campaign running for a while to be a 'vice delegate', which I can only guess means a semi-delegate to the WA, but I'm not sure there's any functionality for that. You're either a delegate or not.

Their military started out as a small collection of 2Holy Warriors" which grew over centuries into a larger more volunteer based force. For some reason that reminded me of the development of Roman Legions but I think it's somewhat different.
