Watching Histrionic Channel's "Ancient Aliens" tv show in a crowded place? Not a crime, but not a good use of time, effort, and resources. (It is quite possible that Giorgio Tsoukalos is a Centauri). Not a crime.

Watching elderly/decrepid aliens (terrestrial) in a crowd place. Not a crime.

Watching elderly/decrepid aliens (extraterrestrial) in a crowded place. Not a crime, but the Commonwealth of Narland Office of Inspection, Archives Division (OIAD), Special Retrieval Unit (SRU) would um..., be interested to know -- for archival purposes... ehem.

Helping ancient aliens regenerate into formidable aliens?

Edit: Execution by hanging while naked, covered in tomato sauce, to be precise. The body is later thrown into the sewers.

Depends on many things, but the lowest possible sentence would be a fine, giving back the stolen objects (or monetary compensation), and prison for up to 3 years with hard labor.

Giving away state secrets on accident while on streaming live?

It varies a lot; where and how did you get those "state secrets"? Do they fall under freedom of information? It could go from no penalty at all to multiple years in prison.

Accidentally shooting another person (he or she doesn't die)
