That never makes sense to me. If there is little to no state, than how do you have a functioning state-ran and planned economy?

Its mainly like a transitional process. I harbor more anarcho-collectivism/communist views but I believe that to reach true [anarcho]-communist society we need to start with [anarcho]-socialism which means that everything is society is run by workers, communes and run not for profit but for needs of the people, state will be rendered almost non-existent and wither away, making a way for a true anarchistic society. That's why socialism is always used as a transitional process. Its not possible and desired to make rapid change from capitalism/imperialistic ideology to a full communism. Very oversimplified and I am sorry for that but I don't want to threadjack-
