If he ever visits Skyhooked, I don't even know what to do, because we would like to present him a gun, but we don't produce guns of such size. Maybe... he could take a battleship like a gun, while sailors or privateers fire their guns at the direction he points, so he would feel like he fires a gun... too bad, we need a battleship ourselves. Wait... maybe we could gift him one of the decommissioned battleships as souvenir... Still, I am glad, that I can like him from a distance. He's awesome! And yes, I love cats too! So it seems you are quite a fierce one. That's good, you must always remember the fighting energy that courses through your veins. But I also encourage you to ask yourself, are you really alright? Is your energy merely a manifestation of your injuries? You have suffered through many tribulations. And suffered through a great deal of experiences. This is not to mention the legacy that you carry as you guide your people through the next era. Do not push yourself too far, or you will find yourself breaking down. And we wouldn't want that, would we? Ara-ara!

Now, as for my opinion on your policies. They seem standard for the time, so I cannot say whether they are good or bad. However, I must say I impressed with how you and the council work together. That is truly the tale of "frenemies" as you call them nowadays. Be careful, though. You probably know better than I, but do not trust them any longer than you must. It could lead to a rather terrible end. Ara-ara!
