"Shortstar is extremely resourceful and clever. She analyzes the situation and works accordingly trying to find the best possible solution. She is extremely skilled in combat, diplomacy, and Clan politics. She can ruthless at sometimes but I guess that's what must be done in order to enact her policies. I'm not too sure where she stands, I cant really decide whether I like her or not. Her stance seems to be based on survival and conquest driven rather than one based on peace and prosperity and she also seems to despise the 'Warrior Code', which is a code of conduct and honor I presume"

"I dont quite know if we connect as well as previous lords. But from his last concerns about me. I'm quite the fighter, when I fought the beasts Lowblood held I had to train a nation to fend for itself as when a threat comes a leader must be ready.

I believe Lowblood has softened a bit since it's previous years, but surprisingly Oni has raised the folk right.

As for ethics and morals, I bend them to my liking if things are drastic, but I honestly dont like to. Like those tuned to beast turn back when they aren't in battle. Unless it's out of my hand.

But I wish I could be more like your nations at times where kindness is admired, but not at these times."-The first king

That war was terrible and horrific, I am unlikely to forgive the rebels for their actions that ended the lives of my parents. However, vengeance is such a petty thing and does no good besides putting more people into the situation that I was forced into, and so I shall look to the future as our two species attempt to come together and forge a better path without any disdain for one another, it will be hard, yes. But if we can sit down and draft up a peace treaty that satisfies both parties, we can coexist despite the hardships that got to such a point. Otherwise, I wish the King well in his reconstruction efforts and talks with Governor Dominic Stane in reforming the old and failed governing system.

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...

"We wish to bring all nations together in the beacon of progress and science.

Our end goal is simple - establish a multiversal technocratic supranational union, under which all nations come together in logic and reason, and outmoded concepts such as national sovereignty, borders, and the free market are abolished. We seek a multiverse guided by the hand of science and knowledge, where progress is always pursued, where the scientist can research anything they wish without worrying if it will receive funding, because all science has value. We wish to create a multiverse without war, without ignorance. No more prejudice, no more 'separate nations', just one people together in the pursuit of knowledge. Our dream is utopian, our goals scientific, our means subversive."

It is true that Arshan is competent and capable leader as the Sultan of Deccan. However, I find it strange that a religious minority is exempted from military service, what makes them unable to serve the country they were born into? And also, what prevents them from marrying into families that do not worship the same god? It seems quite regressive, if a certain group of people are not allowed to serve and marry who they like, regardless of the faith. Otherwise, my assessment is positive as the Sultan means well despite having some odd policies.

And more than 700 years old, yet doesn't look like a heavily deformed elder? Oh, I knew that twolegs had long lifespans, but this is something else. Those God- Godu- Godulans seem to be a strange bunch, though. I also find his style of talk too poetic and filled in jelly - if for cats all twoleg talk sounds like a gibberish, then avoid making it an one for your own kind too. He definitely has a bit of a past with betrayal and drama, but he also seems like a good enough visionary, if not a bit too good to be true. As long as we keep to what's ours, it should be fine."

I can't say he's enough of a federationist to fit at home, but still alright. There are the regular accusations of him being a dictator and tyrant, as one always expects from rightist nations, but I'm quite sure this is overblown. They also call him a war hawk; I quite hope this is true. True liberation requires the destruction of those who enslave and dominate, does it not?"

subversive schemes. I do not view it positively and will remain distrustful of it."

Her Imperial Majesty Akeldama Ekhrukhi, Queen of Queens and Priest of Priests

"The Queen of Queens is an admirable figure. She has been effective with her policies and has worked toward the greater good of her nation. There are some aspects of her policies that I disagree with, such as the state funded discrimination and forced assimilation of Muslims and Arabs. As a ruler she is quite competent but her dislike towards my brothers and sisters in faith is evident"

"Ms. Armansdóttir¹ is better fit to be a politician than most people in this damned continent, I can tell you this much but not more. I'm not entirely a fan of territorial conquests -in large part because we Norsemen of New Valhalla have always been the butt of these ambitions- and I can't say I support her interventionism that much, but I'm more than a fan of most of her social policies, I just believe she could stand to give the Iranian people some more rights in decision making."

AN: "I can always appreciate self-made men. That said, I'm not sure if we would have given him citizenship if we were the India in this case in the first place, and I can't help but scoff at his erosion of the weak-willed democracy and industrial autonomy of Deccan -I wouldn't get away with it here, nor would I let anyone else."

¹New Valhalla does not recognize any royal offices. Everyone is "Mr/Ms./Mrs./Miss", and everyone is greeted with a patronymic or (in rarer cases) matronymic.
