It's pretty interesting if you know that the Nazis pretty much had to go to war earlier to enhance their economy by stealing from other countries, because they were about to economically collapse.
Also, most of their grand projects, like the Autobahn, were already planned and started by the Weimar Republic.

Yeesh, and I thought I messed this thread up with my nagging...I do still.

I think this is a cliché I'd love to complain about again, but I can't because I'm unable to enunciate in a long-winded paragraph: leaders who are just happen to be Mortal Kombat/Fallout characters; they are virtually overpowered in hand-to-hand combat and gunfights. Bonus if they happen to be practitioners of magic.

I'd prefer them over useless leaders who can't even take a punch. If your leader can't shatter mountains with their fists what are you even doing?

Nations that fall into either of the following categories:

1. They're just a RL nation but with some totally unique and not at all overdone alternate history twist
2. They're not a RL nation, but they are so heavily inspired by a RL nation that it pretty much is that nation just with a different name

Aye. It's also almost always just the usual suspects, USA, CSA, Germany, Great Britain, France, Russia, China, Japan or an united Africa. Also it's quite a shame that there are literally no restrictions, yet people chose to not make something interesting with it.

Also, to that I would add: Nations with standard, real-world, ideologies. Worst offenders are those that lack the real world history for these ideologies to even have formed.

The Liberalism we know of didn't just come to existence, but was formed over a long period, same with socialism, fascism, democratism, etc.

And it's almost always the forms of the ideology that succeeded in the IRL Timeline or got popular through HOI4 Mods, never those that exist but are rarely thought about.

My favorite althist YouTuber who also likes to pull things out of his incredibly biased-ass pointed out four new "religion" that might dominate in the future (also, my and his definition of "religion" is incredibly relaxed and contains things like communism):

1. Computer worship
2. Gaia worship
3. Internet libertarianism
4. Religion based on transhumanism

If the RA ever gets a worldbuilding extension (instead of just a thought experiment revolving around the central character), I guess I'd explore more on those four... maybe.

voting system is irreparably broken at this point, given that literally everyone regularly active on f7 is getting downvote spammed by now and mods still consider it completely unactionable

Cliché: I'm always coming back to this thread with a hundred different puppets to complain about stuff I've already complained a hundred pages ago. And I have already mentioned several clichés here, but then I realize should be complaining about something else. And then I realize there's nothing else to complain about anymore.

Edit: Actually, I remember now: not only do people include their OOC beliefs on their signatures, they just take immense pride of being who they are in the dang things. "Proud Conservative", "Proud Liberal", "Proud-", just stop that. Please. Cease that gobbledygook.

You underestimated the keen eyes of my fragile ego.

Why would people do mass downvoting, though? (Although I suspect that it has something to do with summerposters, of whom my policy is to respond to both the quality post and the one-liner, sparing me from such events... maybe. Then again, it might as well be caused by an entirely different reason).
