But really, we're talking about the multiverse here. Literally anything can happen. Like this retard taking the throne for example. Honestly, it feels familiar. A corpse on a throne. I can't exactly figure why though...

Still, I've gotten plenty of hate mail from monarchs and other authoritarian rulers alike for the racism shtick. Like these people are fine with mass murder as long as you don't discriminate apparently. Hell, I killed way fewer people than these faggots, but NO! I'm the evil one, because...I'm racist or something.

Also, what the fuck is a weeb? Anyways, cats beat dogs, and I'm more of a cat than you to be honest.

As for the furball, you and I both know that there ain't enough room in the multiverse for TWO nationalist effeminate guys. Guess I don't mind Jews though. They're pretty much white in my book, and I've never seen them get in my way. Still, we're going to duel at the OK corral? Like the actual one in Tombstone. The Cowboys can even organize the duel. Oh wait, I forgot, you can't respawn if I gun you down. Sometimes I forget that people can be mortal since I ascended the entire nation to GODHOOD. You wanted some variety, here's my attempt.

Ministry on Foreign and Internal Affairs
Supercomputer Tom
Opinion on Casey F. Pickett
Status: Not Classified, for public's eye, if necessary

Honestly, I am not sure, how unique Pickett is in his racism, because it often is one of the points, which has led him to be condemned by many characters there. If anything, he is nothing if compared to that Afrikaner nazi wannabe Pieter and his Ryk, which has some... ahem, interspecies genocide going on. Maybe the fact, that someone who is in favor of direct democracy and confederalism is also racist at the same time is something which makes political normie and generic brains go to short circuit, as racism is usually expected from authoritarians/totalitarians. Although I am a supporter of pan-human doctrine, and racism on official level between local leaders could be dangerous, internal prejudices are somewhat one can't just remove.

He was a pre-war labor activist, huh? And a programmer with an interest in history? Hey, we have got a combo of a geek, who could lead in the post-apocalyptic world! Now, when thinking about it, a lot of the working class members themselves were conservative, and not so tolerating towards minorities. Anyways, judging from his pre-war activity, some of his activities would certainly be labeled as "un-american" by some of the old world's USA, hehe. That said, judging from his post-war story, at this point he is a dangerous enemy against whoever gets in his way, as he can use the technology of his world well. While I might dislike the contents of his revolution, any revolution shaking the status quo generic conservatives and liberals is good.

Now let's take a look at the political views... It is good to finally see some, who despises those monarchists and liberals, as usually all they blabber about is "muh liberty and so on", while I just want to purge the monarchist taint from my Earth. It is also kind of interesting, to see how he favors one of the mutie groups, and despises the others. I assume, that ghouls are much more safer than super mutant brutes, but we personally would prefer to see the possible xenos and muties dead in our world if the mythological-beasts-and-gods-will-allow-it. Also good to see another capitalist hater and private corporation despiser there, along with loathing the useless republican party of the old world, which also weren't republican at all - propping up monarchists is indeed very "republican" from them. However, as far as his white nationalism... I personally hold little to no love for the groups he hates either, but my position has forced me to tolerate them at least, as pissing off partners and allies across the world is the last thing I would want. Perhaps his country is more homogeneous to be able to afford white supremacism, but it will bite you back one day. Also, why Quebec isn't a direct part of you? Because that is an ugly hole on an otherwise clean North America. Is it a vassal, or something?

I am meh or positive for the most part on commies, and this so called "ussr" you are talking about, but I myself don't really like the old world's USA, or confederates. Ok, the neo-confederates now have got more control over their region, to the point the authority of central government has decreased, but they still are part of SC, end of story. I personally don't really like the worker's self management, but I do support his idea of labor unions, and syndicalism, along with socialism, is something our politicians and think tanks have proposed in their regions for decades. Of course, I don't really like much of his democratic ideals, as he very well could have used his Computer Science degree to form another autocracy, yet picked to not do so. Most of the factions he doesn't like I don't even know, or just barely, but I am puzzled by his distaste for Mormonism - yes, they are certainly a weird strain of Christianity, but in the end, they are still a part of the Christian family. I know, that you are an atheist, but still... If anything, religions should not be infighting with each other, but instead working together against atheists, but it is a concept other multiverse's theocrats haven't grasped well yet, and even in my homeplanet, I still have to convince those religious leaders, which still doubt it.

And yeah, your uniform is probably a some sort of a battle attire - very southernish, in fact. However, you could perhaps shave a bit more often. And no, not necessarily with a razor or beard knife - sometimes, trimming them is enough. Overall, he is somewhat of an eccentric person, and I am aware of our mutual dislike. Until next time, farewell.

"Someone like him being emperor is a bit of a surprise, in my humble opinion. Hating something as broad as 'furries' despite aliens with certain appearances not even technically COUNTING is retardation of the highest order. He seems to be one of the worst examples of a reactionary monarchist that I've seen in some time, though that's hardly a surprise. His stance on AI rights is also a tad bit...problematic. I know many androids who are worthy of rights, including myself! Even though I started out as a human.....It also doesn't help that he LARPs as a successor to Western Rome, much like my predecessor LARPed as a new Justinian. A real revivalist movement should see itself as a step forward from its basis, not a one-by-one recreation. All in all, I view him as a harmless though dopey ruler at best, irritating fool at worst."

Her Grand Imperial Majesty, Hotaru III, Empress of the Woominate of Inkopolia

"Empress Hotaru leads a very iron-fisted government, but much of this is because she inherited such a government. I am impressed by the amount she influences her nation even while a regent acts in her place. I was, you know, about her age when the Free Land was founded, and I ascended to its leadership. While a few of my generals attempted to impose a regent on me, I successfully prevented this. Hotaru, however, probably doesn't have this option, as she is being placed into a system over one thousand years old. Hotaru, like most world leaders, needs to learn the virtue of Laissez Faire, Laissez Passe, if she is to do the most good for her nation once she comes of age. I find her opposition to federalism problematic, but understandable given the situations of her nation. However, I do believe she stands to do a great deal of good for her nation, when she comes of age.

The Archduke is a figure on whom relatively scant information is available. His political stances are ill-defined by the mere conglomeration of three terms, though I suppose I may glean certain details from what little is presented to me. His liberalism is, on the surface, a welcome sight - that said, exactly what issues he takes a liberal stance on is left unspecified. I find that classical liberalism tends to be skewed more towards the economic side of things - freedoms of monetary mobility, rather than direct action and expression. Still, it puts him a fair few grades above the typical totalitarians whose dossiers I am so often presented with. His economic stances in general are, of course, one area in which we are misaligned - while I understand that an ill-managed control economy will nigh-inevitably invoke disaster, a Laissez-Faire economy is a disaster already in progress. A unchecked melee of corporate interests, devoid of supervision and unconcerned with the individual. And of course, his persistent stance against abortion. A point of disagreement that, I suspect, may rest on spiritual matters. Perhaps I am mistaken in such an assumption, but his general persona seems to point towards such considerations. He may be a deeply devout man - and this, I would wager, is perhaps his greatest failing. I can respect pragmatists and idealists alike, provided their pragmatism and their ideals serve to better the lives of the people they govern. But a leader who is driven by some nebulous scripture, some imagined higher force the effects of which are only palpable in the theoretical afterlife they so fervently yearn for... he may be driven to enact changes that cause detriment to his people in the present, and in the tangible, certain future, in the vague hope that they may aid their attainment of a state of being which may not, in fact, exist at all. I am not saying that the Archduke is one such ruler, for with the information available it really is impossible for me to tell for certain. But for now, I will remain guarded - for a ruler who listens more closely to the words of some ephemeral spirit than those of the people whose lives he controls is little more than a hazard.

Dictator-backed dedication to absolute civil freedoms, ultrabureaucratic pseudo-socialism and heavily-armed neutrality. Fueled by PMT*/FanT nanopunk schizotech, eldritch red tape and snazzy neo-cold war aesthetics on a broken continent.

Factbooks are currently in the middle of a Big™ Rewrite™, almost everything's out of date and ugly. Don't read them.

“Hm...compared to everyone else, I am quite honest and deeply frank with others, especially towards this supposed "Vozhd" and his perception of socialist-owned authority under the pretence of an idealistic socialist "utopia". Indeed, my opinions against Rasputin and those other lot of petty, headline far-leftists like him remains steady and unflinching; he is true-to-type to his character; a person blindly inclined to replace a system of economy which is able to function reasonably than an economy overruled by a socialistic regime. Perhaps if people did not overlook what he has swept under the rug already, they are able to see this Vozhd for who and what he isn't: the ideal socialist 'role model' for the common folk, and honesty is truly hard to come by today.”

“How completely ironic that someone with virtually no defining features besides being a "tyrant" should complain about socialist economies being "overruled" by a "regime", and speak of preserving a "reasonable system" when her entire political career has consisted of purges, brutality, and conquest.

I am not really up with you being against peace, but hey, there could have been worse people to meet, you know? You remind me a little bit of me, given the narcissism that we have in our veins, and stuff like that. I wanna ask: Would you like to team up with me? "As I look upon the dossier and file I have about Valentijn, I realize something. For how much I disagree with his general politics (and it would be extremely petty of me to consider him a bad person just because of that) and for how much I usually dislike pacifism.....I can't hate him! Everything about what he does is to bring a little bit of happiness to this world! In fact, the only real negative emotion I feel is envy. I envy the fact that he can be this happy without any sort of caveats. Every time I get happy...Memories come back. Memories that spoil the entire thing. I hate the fact that I can't hate him for this envy! I don't even know if that makes a modicum of sense, but it's generally how I feel. Such a positive force that I can't even bring myself to hate him for having what I don't."

What happens when you cross anime powers and overpowered leaders with furies, all written by a bored Homestuck fan with too much time? Well, you get Rumei. A multiethnic, FT republic with both might and magic that let it conquer the entire Orion Arm.

A 7.6 (this is probably outdated but I can't do the calculations rn) (Tier 9, Level 6, Type 9) according to this index.

Come to The Orion, we got CULTURE and FURRIES

Show Recommendation: Cobra Kai. It is very, very good.

IC Name: Roman Republic, or simply Rome (Rumei). Occasionally called the Ignisian Republic. Current year is 2697.
