Mandatory fines (calculated based on the amount embezzled) in addition to mandatory enrollment in an Institute of Rehabilitation and Reeducation for between two and ten years, depending on the severity of the antirevolutionary act. In practice, most offenders will enroll for a maximum of four years. Dutiful patriotic labor is also an alternative to enrollment to demonstrate commitment to the People and the Revolutionary ideals.

If it is as a low yield otherwise harmless prank, no crime. Using a weapon of mass destruction as a means of grievous harm is 5 to 20 years hard labor, and for homicide the death penalty.

Passing out dozens of exploding cigars/cigarettes/vape pipes to known smokers/vapers such that the explosion powders their faces with soot, and singes their eyebrows and facial hair?

Most likely execution for the officers, life imprisonment for the soldiers.

The government would retaliate and kill whoever was responsible at the very least; possibly war if the foreign leader can be proven to have ordered the hit.

An off duty cop is vacationing in a foreign country. While in that country they discover that an extremely wanted criminal from your country is also living there; the cop kills that person and manages to leave before the foreign authorities find out. But later they do find out and angrily demand the cop's extradition for murder. Meanwhile many of your citizens are praising the cop's actions. As leader how do you handle the case; do you extradite the cop, punish them under your own laws, or do nothing?

Hamas doesn't exist here, so for the sake of answering, I'll just substitute it for a generic terrorist organisation at war against Israel.

Depends mainly on the "support", merely speaking out or peacefully demonstrating in favour of the organisation is not a crime, but sending weapons, money, or anything of value to the group may be punishable by a minimum of 10 years to a maximum of 20 years in prison, while being a member of the group or having links to members of the group may be punishable by between 15 years to life in prison.

Selling human meat is outlawed in all cases, and in which case, assuming that evidence of you murdering people for your business, it can land you with several charges in first-degree murders and a lifetime in prison with little chance of parole. If not, then 15 years in jail for participating in a human meat trade. On top of that, a fine of up to $25 grand in CSD for violating health code principles.

We usually just send them to the UN to let them deal with it. Otherwise life in prison without parole. On rare occasions we may extradite them to the country the committed the war crime in or against, but that's very rare.
