I've been vibing around for a year or so in various forms, and it's been steadily trending up. Not enough to be indicative of something imo, but it's certainly there.

Arms Dealing, Blockade Running, Black Market Procurement, Mercenary Contracting. We get you what you want, where you want it, for a price. We also chose to not sign anti-piracy laws for a reason, it'd be a shame if your cargo went missing.

It's a hassle to figure out what's quality work and what's actually going to remain active past a few days. Also still is quite annoying to write a detailed response and get a one sentence reply. My fault for attempting to do it I suppose.

Same. It's part of the larger syndrome of "I have something to say about a current crisis, even though it is a rather shallow take", however. Still pretty appalling behaviour of them

Relevant cliché: people who has never seen war. Resulting in extreme glorification of the military, and war, and bombing, and imperialism in their lore. Now that the entire Western ruling elite and its grassroots opposition and all the media establishment and almost all political sides greatly interested in intensely covering how insanely atrocious a real war really is, I expect culture shocks for many people.

A scenario where the Chinese people took over Malaya and replaces its Malay and indigenous tribal inhabitants. Under the technocratic authoritarianism of Lee Kuan Yew and his "Kongsi government", the quasi-apartheid state had grown into a global industrial behemoth equal to Korea and Japan. Yet the specter of Maoism among poorer Chinese and extreme Islamism among Malays is ever-present...

NSers don't glorify war, tbf

They glorify their side beating the shit out of people they don't like - which is worse. At least an NS nation that's an overglorified comic book war story could be fun, seeing "Europe beating the shit out of Africa/Muslims" is just kinda demoralizing.

Most "in-story" wars (that aren't being actively roleplayed between multiple players) are either no-holds-barred beatdowns that end up being just sad, or a sign of the writer just not having an idea how modern wars work (I've seen people write wars that use tactics you wouldn't see at any point after the standardization of indirect artillery fire.).

trench warfare and bayonet charges with thousands of soldiers would clearly work in an MT/PMT/FT war and wouldn't just lead to unnecessary casualties in the thousands
