AAAN:

"I admire your determination. Other than that, all I see is an old man hungry for power, courting other old men like a womanizer courts wives. You have successfully managed to export your political ideology of rampant improvement of one's nation whenever possible, principles be damned, into your personal life as well. I am unsure as to the sustainability of such a policy. I wish you luck, sir, and I hope you find your throne made from the corpses of your political opponents comfortable. Perhaps you'll find some morals up there as well."

-And she knows a certain womanizer very well, so you can be sure she knows what she's on about.

AAN:

"WOAH WACKY HAHA LOL FUNI."

-HEE-HOOHEE-HOOHEE-HOOHEE- please try harder.

AN:

"Well, Ilitu, we meet each other once more. I do think I have already spoken on you before, so if you will forgive my, ah, departure from this forum's purpose, I would give unto you counsel I find wise. I know that you see your station as one of absolute power, and I do believe that is wise. If you are a goddess, as you say, then that is your duty, and your nature. I doubt that assertion, but this is not the place for such debates. However, what I see in you is a leader who is... out of touch. Not in the sense of a wise elder who holds valuable counsel for their descendants, though I feel you may fill such a role, but in the sense of one who is trying to lead when they should not. It is your duty to do the best for your people you can. I would counsel you, then, to make yourself as a First-Among-Equals. Entrust with a few the prosecution of your nation's goals until you have adapted to your new times. You have slept for quite a while, and it seems that your world has moved beyond both our understandings. If you will take the counsel of a young fool, then I would advise you: learn how it has changed, and for a time do not lead, even if it be your right alone to do so. When you have come to understand your new times, only then you will be fit to do your duty. A leader is the voice and hand of their people; if they do not know what their people want, then their words will do naught but deceive, and the hand that grasps the blade will ever fall on the wrong heads. My father taught me that, and he is wise; if you will not take my counsel, then perhaps take his."

-A little bit of friendly advice from one who is not yet a friend.

"Well, if it ain't Ms. Ari... again. I'm gonna put aside my biases for a second here and tell you what I think objectively. I gotta say, I'm quite impressed by your accomplishments. You already organized a raid that burned down three cities. Hell, even when I was fightin' in the war, I was only able to take a few towns. Not to mention, you are slowly solidifyin' your own power, somethin' which not even the greatest Wexan kings were able to do... though, I guess in our case, we actually have power to begin with, so the comparison really ain't fair. Regardless, these are rather impressive... and you're not even 21 yet. Hell, when I was 21, I were just some Baron of Angleton, propin' my boots on the town hall desk while makin' sure the reservoirs don't run dry. I am impressed such a young gal was able to accomplish so much in 21 years, well, really only 13. I can't imagine little baby Ari was ridin' horses and raidin' villages before she could even count to ten. Regardless, she is a gal who, while I may not be able to like due to her Mongoloid tactics, I will have to respect her as she no doubt has her talents."

Mr..Boris yaklavich, a communist puppet dictaor... i pity you. Decided to colonize Antarctica and make a living hell. Already without communism Antarctica is a staving place, but now with you its impossible to live. You don't appreciate democracy and that is quite sad. Expect tariffs and high taxes coming your way.

Mr. Winnie was democratically elected, that does not mean he is fit for the role. I hope with time he will change his stances on climate change and focus more on the happiness of his people. At first, folk of the tribes came from far and wide in order to learn his wisdom. But with his unending life came a curse. Things changed, and the wise man knew that his knowledge was becoming more and more outdated and fewer and fewer came to hear his teaching. Soon, none came to him, and he grew lonely. He called out for attention, but few remembered his name, and as the city grew the square was no longer the center of commerce in town and traffic through the square slowed to the barest trickle. "The influence of militaries in the affairs of state is an issue which precedes the histories- it has plagued the leaderships of many aspiring peoples, dooming them to a glorious rise followed quickly by the bickering and squabbling which so often befalls creatures which lack the necessary cunning to survive. To so clearly see an example of the rot and ruin which I have long associated with your kind is, if nothing else, disappointing. Your foolish dismissal of age-old wisdoms is, in itself, a foolish ignorance of what you don't know. You claim such lofty positions, so that you might look better to your subjects and subordinates. But I know. I know the coward hiding behind the armor- the 'Vermuth' behind the 'Iron Tiger'. Hidden behind all the bravado and senseless stoicism is a mask, hiding the true- lame- man you are. Truthfully, if ever there were another man so uncool and"- conspiratorial whisper-" lacking as you, I would be forced to tears, knowing that such utterly inadequate men exist. I cannot even begin to comprehend how one such as yourself begged himself upon so many women as to somehow- perhaps some prankster gods divine joke- procreate with so any desperate women. Though, thinking on it logically, perhaps they aren't actually yours, and you're merely such an idiot as to believe the same lie four separate times. To state My opinion of you in as concise a manner as possible- you are a brawny fool, drunk on pragmatism, and utterly without worth. I suppose the same is probably true for the rest of the Cala, given what I've been cursed to gaze upon so far..." -Ilitu, the Great Goddess Who Leads, taking that elder comment personally I see.

"Some 'Goddess' you are, to feel such an inferiority complex. How fragile must your ego be, to insult others in such childish ways? Your words have the petulant ring of one in whom my words found their mark. I can see why you stand against democracy so, for you would have been voted down long ago." - Cala Vermuth Iron Tiger

Godulan Puppet #2, RPing as technologically advanced tribal society founded by mongols and vikings (and later with multiple other Asian and Native American cultures) motivated by an intrinsic devotion to the spirit of competition. They'll walk softly, talk softly, and make soothing noises as they stab you in the back and take your stuff... unless you're another Caleshan, whereupon they'll only stab you in the back figuratively!

Used NS stats: Population. That's it. Anything else not stated in the factbooks is not used.

Oxton Arielle Lindall Leslie Vitesse Allison: I do have a nagging feeling that I might have accidentally offended her, or as her last post said, she just does not seem to understand how this place works. Very strange, really! Her mind, if she is a Goddess, has transcended through time and through multiple dimensions, but it would seem to me like she is a little... stuck. Of course, I am not the one to be offended by the words that she has said to me last time; it happens now and then, I have learned to accept it. I could move on and tell her about the whole thing, which might also put her in more distress. Can deities go into distress? Do they get stressed up? I am not the one to find out. Anyway, as for herself, and people said that I have a huge ego! Or like that one fellow from Thakia who said that I have let thousands and millions suffer. There is only so much meddling I can do without hurting your universe and having to Big Rip the damn thing. Everyone of you have a free will, so... you can't pin all that blame on me! I can lessen the suffering, but anymore, and you might as well be collapsed into a blackhole together with a trillion stars. I tried to stop World War 1 from happening and all I got was 5,302,409,103 unstable universes, and a very, very torn coat of Archduke Franz. I am getting too much into this, so... you know, call me, I can help you sort this out as a Goddess.
