Look, you seem like a nice fellow, but I can't help but think that you've got the luxury to be so idealistic, with damn near nobody capable of actually... looking you... squints in the eye and telling you it's all so much flowers and kittens and so little of substance! "Well, uh. I think you're quite the skilled warrior, to be absolutely frank. I mean, your people are so brutal to their leaders you must be. It's certainly an admirable way to ensure the very best rise to the top, even if I find it a little too, well, wasteful for my tastes, but, ah well. It doesn't matter much in the end, as long as it works. I'm glad to see a fellow rover, as well, even those pirate blokes are too still for my tastes. You're an excellent fit for your people, and to be honest, I'd not hesitate to fight alongside you if given the chance. I, uh, I won't be, uh, taking you up on your other offer, though, I'm not, um, let's just not.

And, uh, changing the subject... can I please, please, please have a submarine? I promise I won't crash it!"

You're the one whose always going on and on about absolute rule. And Ari is working to attain it. She has more ferocity than some pathetic wastes of talent I could name. But won't. Because their lack of ambition is so pitiful their stupidity is clear to all. And I think Ari is better than some psychopathic imbeciles with delusions of godhood I could name! But won't. "Strasserites are merely the 'left-wing' of fascism. He is a nationalistic revanchist who seeks the death of communists, enemies of his vision of Germany, and subscribes to an ideological platform rooted in anti-Semitism whilst somehow claiming to disavow anti-semitic ideas. He has given the police substantial material power by handing them what he has called a 'blank check' to fight Communism. History will see fit to one day shred apart and tear asunder their convictions as it has done to every attempt to preserve traditional order in the face of the changing tide of society. No sane mind would seek to recreate the kind of society he upholds.

Make no mistake, this man, this Wolfgang fellow, is merely a moderate Fascist. And all successful fascists, no matter how 'moderate' they may have been at the forefront of the attacks against pro-democratic, pro-worker, anti-war, and anti-imperialist peoples."

"A Nazi is still a Nazi no matter how hard they repudiate the ideology and distance themselves from it. One seldom realizes his darkest most inner self and it shows how hard he tries to restrain himself from ravaging the entirety of Russia. You might claim to not be anti-semitic and "love thy Jews" but the same cannot be said for your supporters who would all be naturally inclined to believe that there's a Jewish conspiracy. The more things change, the more they stay the same as they say. This Reich is a farce and the Germans are complicit in this. Strasserism is a dead end when they lost the power struggle."

"No Socialist, but we rarely get to choose friends in politics. Unity is interests not ideology."

"Prime Minister Wilkins is a milquetoast Social Democrat at best. That's not to throw shade on him as a person or political leader of course but he is no socialist nor that much left of the center. Something he himself would likely admit. I'd argue he's to the right of the Jacobins in my party and to the Socialist Democrats. That being said, like the two aforementioned groups, I believe he is honest and sincerely progressive. I see cause for progressive movements in his country to ally with him on shared issues but I would caution a complete Popular Front excepting a place where those forces can push his platform left or in cases where his tendency is under threat of a right-ward power loss.

Overall my position on the man is cordial, respectable, yet detached."

The Statement on Azzakrat

"So, we assume that she specializes in some sort of underwater warfare, then. We are not sure how good of an idea the Succession of Combat is for the tribes, as the outcome is purely determined by the fighting skill of the contenders, And she also sees her own tribe as a some thing between military and family... Well, it is not too different from how we see it, although we don't place as much emphasis on military part. It seems that she either really wants to be out there to fight, or is bad at strategy, because she leaves most of that part to the subordinates. We hope that she at least gives that task to someone who is actually competent, and not someone who would be better suited at front. Not much to object in this field."

"Politically we don't seem to have much disagreements, with a few exceptions on feminism perhaps, but better let's not get into those can of worms. Also, does her opposition to international police comes from fact that it can actually stop the bigger fish from bullying smaller nations and show them the place? At least she isn't an avaritionist, and doesn't follow the "rule of stick". As for personality... Well, the smile and cordial treatment certainly contrasts with how bloodthirsty she can be in a fight, and the perpetual smile on face is something to worry about. Hey, perpetual frown makes more sense, especially because life is not good for everyone, but those who are overtly happy are to be watched out for."
