Well, depends if you donated those organs or wanted to take them for monetary gain.

Monetary Gain, 35 years of prison.

Donation to the Hospital, 20 years of prison and a fine of equal worth of organs harvested.\

Accepting a traitor from enemy army on your side

Being caught betraying your army in favor of the enemy

If it has an owner, that's his decision, if it's on a nature reserve, with permission from the rangers and a Hunting Permit. You may. Otherwise, straight to 10 years of jail and 20 years of community service.

Intentionally break the line of "harsh education" by punishing those who fail to submit requirements in time, thus increasing the rate of suicide in students due to the harsh punishments and scolding from parents.

Guy who will most definitely ignore your signatures.

Hello All,

The above crime would likely not be noticed - but if one were found applying unwanted physical force to another person without their consent or a binding contract implying their consent, then they would likely get three to six months in prison.

An armed raid of a live nuclear power plant by a religious group claiming that the reactor is their sacred relic.

Sincerely,

Jesus, how bad is the security? Caught would be meaning a year of community service for the violator and a $100,000 fine for it's staff not dealing with the situation.

But hypothetically it's ignored and a fire does happen. Smells like an instant death penalty.

Punching a person in the stomach, causing gastrointestinal issues which promptly leads to death. (Poor Houdini.)

That's hilarious, but as soon as the NSAR troopers you did it in front of would stop laughing that's your ass going to jail. Fun is fun, and he might have banged your sister, but you can't punch people indiscriminately. Flipping people off, maybe.

Running around in sports gear and skirts cosplay and crucifying people you deem profligates. Keep in mind they're speaking Latin while they do this. Public indecency and motivated homicide.

Murder would be the death penalty. Public indecency generally a flogging, so a flogging then a hanging.

Urinating in a public reservoir.

I doubt you'd be able to crucify multiple people in public, but you'd probably be put to death. Potentially by crucifixion.

Home invasion + killing the inhabitants.

If by this you mean urinating in public, outside of designated toilets, then you can be hit with a fine for public indecency.

We don't have an official religion, and our most practiced religion is really atheism, so closest is burning the sacred texts of the Bible, which we will only assign a punishment for if it causes any property damage, which will depend on how severe said damage is, but otherwise isn't really a crime.
