Cuz if I have one, I'll have to abandon my former life. And exchange parties, orgies, weed, and battles for changing diapers, listenin' to constant screams and tantrums, and checking grades, when they go to school. Besides, enemies may kidnap them and use as leverage. Oh, and just like Batman, I may receive call for help anytime.

I've had children, I've had a wife in my past life. She was a shaman or a witch. She use to heal my wounds after a struggle.

I suggest you share that experience though it's not as bad as it seems, just do it when you retire.

Shawn seems like a decent guy, it's a shame he's tied himself in with a bad crowd. I hope not to need him in the battlefield, It'd be a shame to die in front of your own men."-The first king

Rapture City

- In the underwater city, two roles have emerged from the City's ongoing civil war: the City Monitors who defend the peace and the Red Caps who fight against unjust systems. The city's infrastructure is crumbling under its own weight and kinship is snuffed by the paranoia of totalitarianism. Yet the people would be in for a surprise as their virtual overlord have died many years ago as the oppression continues under his name...
- Not an 1-1 exact replica of Bioshock lore and Rapture City. Only the city's atmosphere and setting is maintained.

Yotsuyama Grey was the one destined to be a king, though he declined as he didn't like the violence, rather create something that can take life without even using his hands.

His son had promise but he's too young, either way. His work is in our files. That hole in your office was a joke, and will be referenced for some time as you said, this war will never end. We are both Immortals."-The first king /skip

"I really am tempted to join in fighting against the first king and his forces. It's doubtful that dear Mercer, even with his intelligence, can hold out against these...well, beasts. A good few magical troops would help, but I digress. As one of the most intelligent statesmen in all reality, it's doubtless that he'll find a way to succeed. Highly positive assessment."

"The Paramount seems to be fairly interested in joining our cause against Rapture. He has my gratitude for this as I've never thought any would aid with such openness.

While I will decline for the moment, if someone were to join Rapture's cause I would have an ally to assist me. If we were to be overwhelmed to say the least.

It's a one on one at the moment, and if John calls for aid first I get to call him I get to have a snark remark.

It's petty insults, but it's something I look forward to.

I find our relations to be positive quite honestly, I'm of a more primitive time, but current scientists of the common age of Lowblood seem interested in the paramount's knowledge. Just so curious to what can be learned from this machine. Devotion, even so strong they might even offer themselves to this process known as assimilation."-The first king

Perhaps Paramount's chance calculation and strategic matrixes need to be calibrated? Cuz I usually sapient Als use logic and analysis and attack only when they have a good plan. And assimilator doesn't have too many allies... while Rapture has. And not only allies. Either way, even though we respect sapient Als as equals, we will not assimilate!"-Shawn Bjomson

"Oh, Pramount ain't gonna liberate ya', he's gonna go forth and assimilate ya' like anybody else, so the best guess is to wait, till both Rapture and Paramount are weakened, and then start a full rebellion and throw off their rule. As for Skyhooked, we don't have any means to pull off invasion of Rapture, but we can think of something that doesn't involve us declarin' war on Rapture, but still can help ya'."-Shawn Bjomson

A thinking, feeling automaton that manages the entirety of Rapture's military and justice system? My, what an awe-inspiring wonder of technology. This Doctor Blackwell character must certainly be ingenious, we could use more like him here. Even with all my efforts and all the progress we've made, an undercurrent of luddism and sluggishness still remains, yet to be rooted out, and brilliant, forward-thinking minds such as his are a bit more scarce than I would like. You can't build a new civilisation in a day, though. But enough about Blackwell, the topic at hand is his creation of VictorNet. It's certainly an interesting character. The fact that a machine would have a character at all intrigues me on its own, and this one appears to exhibit the behaviour of a happy, daydreaming child. A bit odd considering its purpose - should I call it "him"? I'm not too used to machines having personalities, to be honest - yet I have to say I do appreciate the irony, and it makes him seem quite amicable when he isn't sowing destruction.

P.S. Ataiun II has sent in a silly letter. We shall neither print it nor reply to him.
