"Emperor Oswald is truly a superb leader by all accounts and if we were able to we would appoint him into a high position in our own Imperium for the competence he seems to demonstrate. He reminds us of one of our consciousnesses from sometime within Octavious' own history. His military wit and administrative skill make us see him in high regard. Our opinion is positive."

Imperial-Octavia - The Paramount

"It's difficult for me to pass my opinion on artificial intelligence since their very ideals are usually programmed in on its creation. the paramount however has really taken it's advancement a lot further than one would normally expect. As usual with other rulers, the paramount's ideals are mixed, some are good, others are bad, but i will focus on the ones i definitely approve of. suppression of the press is one, as most of them very often do nothing but lie. assembly is another, since it does naught but disrupt the everyday motions of society, and can potentially be damaging if left unchecked. as for the conversion of organic to robotic, sure, if those who who are happy to undertake the procedure, then why not, since people will no longer have to worry about the eventual failures of their organic bodies over the years. i am curious to know its views on the environment, since it mentions nothing of the sort in the details i have as of current... overall, i will keep myself neutral to him for now"

While symbiotic relationships can form, every nation must be prepared to use arms to take or defend the resources they need like predators and prey must. Like with species a nation that isn't prepared to do so will fall and be replaced by a fitter one that will. "I wish I could talk in that tone -- like the eugenist community used to do back in the 40s. 'Kill everyone and replace their people with ours. We are the single greatest race, the rest are subhumans.' Alright, she might not have said that, but who knows? The Queen's quest and struggle of power just go to show that war is geared deep into their evolution, more so than in that of Gaian humans. The physiology of the Swarm's species dictates that they rule in this manner and there is likely no way to get out of it thanks to how tightly the system is protected against dissent. PMT/Early FT - Decopunk. Zitragrad is a crowned republic in a planet somewhere else in the universe. The formerly wartorn nation keeps a facade of normalcy and order while enjoying the societal and cultural decadence that marks the new Roaring Twenties. The paranoid authoritarian government tries its best to uphold order in the face of uncertainty, while its people want nothing more than a breathing space. A deal that works, but maybe not in the long run. |

For myself, Ms. Feodora certainly does not need any introduction for myself! She has been the friends of the Valentians many times, and I do think that she has spoken about me as well. I am not saying this with a negative connotation; simply the matter of factly that yes, we have met! I am still very positive on you, of course! I do wish you and Mr. Kazimir well! I do wonder why you look rather solemn and sad almost all the time. Perhaps your face does not show happiness as prominently as the others? Or is there something that I should be worried about as a friend? As for Dr. Konstantin Stepanovich Nedelykov, this is certainly the very first time I have met you, and it has already been a pleasure. A fellow mathematician, imagine that! We should definitely talk about the different theorems and other mathematical features that we have between our worlds. I like to think that we have come across the same theorems, facts, and workings, just under different name thanks to the idea of parallel universes! I am indeed sorry about how your father treated you, as "One of the few which can speak in the transatlantic accent, a.k.a the way how people spoke in USA back in the 20th century? Wait, wha- ohh, we almost forgot, it is a post-apocalyptic land which has gotten terraformed rather quickly. Huh, managing to not lose all of her money to gambling by using the mathematician's skills and just being good that way? Reminds a bit of those hackusations where players who are bad accuse those who got gud as cheating. You got kind of close to being unlucky back then, but at least the Valentijn gave you a fair trial. And, she seems like a very resourceful sniper which you rather shouldn't piss off - a 99% accuracy? Saving killing for the last when family and friends are in danger? Sounds like what a pacifist would usually do."

direction. Many of its prohibitions are something enforced in Kyoki Chudoku, though a lot of them do have special exemptions for veterans, such as alcohol and even smoking these days. That's mainly just because without those little vices they'd probably go insane. In a situation where there wasn't something like the Nightmare, the directorate has the right idea there. Restricting weapon access, being authoritarian even if plagued by elections...it's just a shame they seem to be going in the wrong direction on some of these policies. I hope they're able to reverse course and perhaps improve their level of authority. There is potential for the directorate, but I'm not that hopeful they'll reach it."

QUOTE

“Another unknowable omen; the Dream is inscrutable and the priests cannot see. The chalk-face claims a Turiit heart; he bleeds a lesser hue. He knows nothing; nothing of the birth; nothing of the Dream; his alien mind rejects them each. He may indulge the Dream through pituri, and this I pray he does; else he appears unyielding to the order of things. Many questions linger among my thoughts; he is not king, so what must he be? He lacks the wisdom of the elder; the piety of the priest; it may be the warmaster’s guise that he embodies. I pray his war comes not here; the Serpent would wail and bleed dry.”

- Empress Wallalie I

My contribution to the PT community: An Iron Age civilisation based around the Murray-Darling featuring slavery, kingroups, ethnic categorisation, and a massive amount of INCOMPLETENESS!
