They have taken what is "good" and left all else, I wonder what is really considered good. It's a broad question of course as well as subjective, although they may challenge this subjective view of good.

In 513, they defeated Rher, the country which was better economically than Centrucia.

All citizens are required to own a firearm, yet the government is an autocratic dictatorship.

I can see why they have assimilation of their citizens as a policy.

New mothers are given a 2-week vacation and a smorgasbord of gifts after giving birth, while tween boys forge armour. Must say, I've mixed feelings about this place.

There is a Athenax Wall, which building predates existence of Centrucia and is covered in engravings of the Goddess Athenax.

The "High Executrix" of Godular, Ilia Tyr'Nuruodo, has a notable soft spot for children and even has some didactic skills with them despite having a very cold demeanor most of the rest of the time.

They were founded by - or at least are named after - a revolutionary from Thebes named Selena Pio. Although he led his people into revolt and won against the Romans in 57 CE, he never got to see his nation, as he died from his wounds; his people slaughtered the Romans and would go on to establish Santa Selena. Sounds like a Moses allegory.

Pulsroth has a variety of up to four regional climates, we'd consider most of them to be cold and one of them (the Warm Summer Mediterranean) is only cold during the winter. More than just plain coldness because of latitude though, the nation's high elevations contribute a lot to their lower temperatures.

BN. YES WE'RE "CATGIRLS". Please don't repeat that fucking brilliant one liner again. Please.

Nekos just suddenly appeared around 12-8,000 BCE and that the ancient Tohorinese peoples were the first to achieve major urbanization, supported by a local clime that was deeply amenable to civilization, which as the holocene progressed gradually declined.

Aroni is still a proponent of capital punishment with 189 prisoners having been executed last year. (Yikes) And only by firing squad...man I'd hate to be one of those prisoners that's for sure. It does make me wonder though, as to what crimes are considered severe enough to be on the short list for a firing squad. Serial murder maybe?

Very interesting indeed!

"Somewhere far away, in the distant dunes that rest silhouetted far beyond the ethereal horizons of good and evil, Convallaria has emerged as a technocratic dreamscape of shimmering ambitions and passionate indulgence. A pioneering realm of unbridled industrial sprawl and paranoid black-market underworlds centered around three things: champagne, wealth, and vigorous McCarthyism..."

Very much a fan of how you've added to Azgaar's map generator.

The Centrucian Empire is a vast, expansive empire that has become the hub of modern civilisation. They maintain a strong army to consolidate their geopolitical position as this hub.
