Red Hot Chili Peppers- Under the Bridge

Knowing Maynard (singer of A Perfect Circle, Tool, and Puscifer), it's probably an anti-war song.

And there's pretty much a song for everything.

Swans-You Fucking People Make Me Sick

Electro Slut by Kamui.

Giving my new headphones a trial by fire, considering it was this piece that broke the old ones.

They seem to have a fair variety to them. I haven't listened to much of them though. They also have a really weird song. Which I like weird here and there, so...

Irepress-Diaspora

The vocal part in the song seems a little random and not really important in the song, but the song is good overall.

All Around the World or The Myth of Finger Prints, Paul Simon.

Disappointing.

we, unlike the bourgeoisie, have nothing to lose and therefore our expression will be the only honest one, our words will be the only challenging ones and our art will be the one revolutionary expression. We need new noise and new voices and new canvases to become something more than the last poets of a useless generation.

Irepress-Rhintu.

Not on YouTube apparently.

This band seems to be a post-rock, post-metal band from what I can tell.

Really, there's a lot of genre's I don't really know if they have any exact purpose in existing....though Post-Rock is pretty obviously different for me. I can't really tell what defines post-metal by just listening to it.

Is that supposed to be a retort? Wikipedia is downright terrible with music.
