WHY ARE CHUNKS OF MARS FAZING THE PLANET IM CONFUSED

Well, Supreme Man seems to have flung Deimos into Mars(even though the moon would have fragmented before ever hitting the surface and would barely affect areas of Mars outside its frankly small crater), and chunks of Mars are all over the System. Also Mars is now near-devoid of life.

(Just as a note, ignore everything Ashotu says, he just wants attention and he thinks he'll get it by de-railing the RP.)

Back on M'yri'ah's warship, Capuchin-Alpha salutes the Catgirl leader with a smile, and leaps off the ship, meeting up with a 100-strong battalion of power-armor-equipped capuchins calling themselves the Power Primates. They jet towards the Nuuk railgun complex, followed by a cargo vessel equipped with relativistic railgun ammo. Their aim is not to eliminate the complex, but take it for themselves instead.

They take advantage of the chaos caused by the Martian fragments hitting the city, and sneak into the complex nearly undetected. But they were caught soon before reaching the control room, and a battle between the Power Primates and the Nuuk Railgun Network's security force. But despite being outnumbered, their technological superiority and ferocious fighting style won them the day.

The supply ship finished loading the relativistic rounds into the network, and Capuchin and Catgirl military engineers deployed around Nuuk upgraded the railguns to be able to shoot at near-light-speed. Now, for the Power Primates and Capuchin-Alpha, all that was left was to find their target.

Supreme Man had taken many Capuchin lives, and worst of all, he had all but obliterated the homeworld of the Capuchin Polity's closest ally.

As Capuchin-Alpha sat near a targeting computer, he tried to imagine what poor M'yri'ah must be going through. Yes, the catgirls on Titan and in the Asteroid Belt were fine, but they were nowhere near numerous enough to continue the Catgirl Republic as it was. Her nation had taken a massive blow with the destruction of Mars. He would need to have a genuine talk with her later. Preferably after Supreme Man was either subdued or dead.

After months of preperation Nordic Troops would cross into german territories breaking catalan lands and spearheading to belin, with this they would be in a position to retake their lands.

The war continues on

Supreme Man is found near New Mars and captured. In the trial, he is accused of mass destruction, violation of peace, and acts of god. He is found guilty and killed with help from a one-use weapon using the powers of the four elementals.

The universe has been saved, but Supreme Man's religion ends up becoming more popular due to this.

Nordic troops would continue the offensive into germany, capturing bavaria after a month of brutal fighting, splitting the catalan forces im half allowing the Nordic troops to further invade poland defeating the catalans who'd of began to run low on supplies, now with one front to worry about the Nordics would prepare for the final push into france.

The war countinues.
