To the left we have "New Spiedska, not just a nation of opportunities," then in the centre we have "It is the nation of opportunity." From what I can interpret by these lines is that their nation represents 'opportunities' itself. It offers a place you can really call home. A place you can feel comfortable in. A place where all people can get something out of New Spiedska.

To the right of the banner, we see a silhouette of their nation's emblem/coat of arm. This signifies the governments stamp, which represents it is officially sanctioned by the government to represent their nation.

In the background we have a blurred vision of their city at night. While we cannot see everything, I interpret this as someone needing to travel to New Spiedska to actually see what this blurry city could be. To see what waits from afar.

They have some of that east Asian old-timey architecture and a tropical climate. fair enough.

The Creeping Barrage is the name given to a method of firing artillery. At the beginning of Trench Warfare the basic tactic was to fire lots of artillery at enemy trenches for a sustained period of time and to stop firing just before the infantry attacked. However this method wasn't very successful as the German had built strong bunkers and were able to man the defences in the time between the bombardment ending and the infantry getting to the trenches. A solution to the problem of the time lag between the bombardment and the arrival of the infantry was to change the way that the artillery was fired. Instead of just aiming at the same target the creeping barrage moved forward at a prearranged pace.

We have the many famous landmarks of Russia Zitravgrad.

From the left, we have (what I presume to be) the famous Saint Basils Cathedral. Next to it, we have the equally impressive Orthodox church with its distinct gold domes and white paint. Over the other side we have the St. Isaacs cathedral, which we see from a river side. Lastly, we have the urban centre, with its housings and shops all decorated in red and white, surrounded by a nice array of greenery.
