Man is shot in his sleep by a government official, since where he lives in the nation of Harharb the Church of Man is illegal.

New... couple? (Man and Woman) who are Harharbi, secretly believers in the Church of Man, and armed with plasma guns designed around placeholderium oxide lasers.

Couple glitches out and plasma guns self-detonate for -60 HP each. "Church of Man: Adventures in Harharb" video game then crashes and uninstalls itself.

New man.

After some odd occurrences, involving man encountering a mysterious figure stalking him every now and then, he decided to do some research on the alleged stalker.

Date: 10/74/2491

He has done some work on his research, and he found who was his stalker, it was The Operator.

As it turns out, what crashed and uninstalled was just a game, the real Man (now Man 1) and Woman are still alive. While placeholderium is unstable in normal conditions, most compounds are not, so their weapons are viable.

Woman's real name is Mečizljal Kušnes, so Man 1 sometimes calls her Miku (lol).

As it turns out, there have been hostile spirits and zombies roaming around near Man 1 and Woman's residence; they decide to kill off some of them, and gain power as a result.

it turns out that they're in japan circa 1925 and the IJA (Imperial Japanese Army) has sent 5 divisions of soldiers with arisaka rifles and ha-go tanks to recapture the placeholderium which was theirs to begin with man and miku must defend themselves

As it turns out, the IJA is at war with the OJA (official Japanese army), and is aiming to overthrow the government. Abkhaz' 1925 contains the date 10/74/2491, they're represented in different calendars though.

However, Bob Samples have a random tendency to self destruct, and this cripples the divisions of the IJA affected. A few IJA scouts flee the scene in search for intel, but they are taken out by Man 1 and Miku. As a result of this, they level up again.
