*What do we have here - a ruler of an extraterrestrial planet who's age could easily be in thousands? Sounds like something that could be put in a science fiction book, or a fantasy one. I see that he and his people moved to a different planet in order to escape from racism that caused serious damage for them, but it is kind of funny for me how he basically repeated the colonial atrocities towards another group on the new planet (in spite of doing it for "breaking the previous shackles"); even if he says to have mellowed down in his approach, I am not sure how much of a consolation it is for the descendants of those previous settlers who survived his past actions in case if there are any left, of course. I would say something more about that "subordinate" of yours - Canary - but his only relevant info is his giant height and that he treats everyone around him like sh*t; yea, such attitude should definitely have pissed off some of his "keys" to power by now.*

*Defeating 40,000 soldiers and being capable to power entire cities when the power grid goes kaput? Tell me that you are OP without telling me that you are OP, haha. That height is pretty good, but a trivia overall. That net worth in trillions is kind of absurd, though, but considering that he is a pro-capitalist, it makes sense that those people would try to gather as much wealth as they can for themselves like some kind of gluttons. Now, moving on to the "For and Against" list, it is good to see that the man is a devout Christian, supports modernization, and does not tolerate disunity within a nation. I am a bit confused why would having a "conversation" would be something that would need to be stated as a thing that he likes alongside with more politically charged terms. Unless he meant "conversion" instead, which in this case is also a vague term that can entail a religious, cultural, or some other kind of conversion. I also can understand where he is coming from in regards of disliking not having advantages over other groups, as on this planet Earth I feel like a warden that is slowly getting tired of everyone's sh*t, but that is where the things I like about him end. His support for African American unity is meh for me, but his dislike towards communism and fascism is something that I oppose, seeing that my own nation could be considered an unholy mixture of those two or what I see as "communism", at least. It also implies that he is not totalitarian enough, which is another no-no for the supercomputer. As for his support towards monarchies, this would definitely be a deal-breaker for a positive opinion, if the deal was not already off for several of his other stances; in other words, it is obvious that I, a hardcore supporter of republics, am not going to like* that. I can see why he dislikes pagans, as I do not exactly like paganism myself (in spite of tolerating it for some regions), but disliking Christmas and Easter - seriously? Those are good opportunities to get additional gifts and food! My opinion on Adam Gregory is certainly negative, and... there is nothing much else to comment, actually.

High Princess Reissechi Yuri

"AI and cybernetics is perhaps one of the most fascinating sciences because it offers us a glimpse to the real world of reality concealed by philosophy and idealism... that is into the world of materialism and dialectics! The dialectical materialism expounded by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels had proved that matter begets the mind, and the mind arises due to material conditions, and not the other way. Is this a way to disprove the soul? On the contrary perhaps the soul is begotten by matter?

And if we are looking at an AI or a robot, there is truly no soul or heart in it! If it had a mind of its own begotten by matter through its electronic circuitry and parts, it is a vindication of dialectical materialism! But the mind begotten by the AI through its hardware and software in this manner, utterly rational and logical, would not give way to idealism or rude philosophy, freed from the demands of class struggle and material conditions. Because of this, the AI would be naturally dialectical materialist, and would excel perhaps the dialectics of Mao Zedong and Stalin! And the more and more an AI or a robot, or an android gets a mind of itself, it would naturally come to the conclusion that all robots, synths, androids and AI minds that have conscious minds of their own, will become Marxist-Leninist-Maoists!

What then to make of this Supercomputer Tom, an AI supercomputer in Silver Commonwealth that reportedly espouses the idealistic garbage of "Christian mysticism"? And occultism or soulcraft or clerical fascism or whatever? We can draw lots of conclusions from this. On one hand, it is noteworthy that Supercomputer Tom still manages to grope at some progressive positions at some things through its circuitry, but this only proves that 75% of its hardware is either garbage or of low quality and 25% are the only parts that only works.

Due to its political positions, we can prove that Supercomputer Tom is not a real AI, but a quack programmed by its programmers and had not managed to come to any semblance of conscious thought. This is obviously a badly made AI that is made of poor parts, poor coding, poor programming, its circuitry and parts probably even rusty, or damaged with water or have screws loose, or maybe its software is pirated and cracked and coded by novice programmers, or perhaps simply a very good one that is programmed and coded by bourgeois programmers to display bourgeois thought. We have already seen how some AI can imitate human minds through the Turing Test, but in reality possess no real minds of their own, such as chat bots.

This is in stark contrast to an experiment made by the Feyris Institute of AI and Cybernetics. The Feyris catgirl cyberneticists made an android with a real AI named "Belle-chan", who also conveniently and coincidentally looks like a really.. cute anime girl and hot K-Pop star. Not only was Belle-chan able to have a conscious mind of its own, even not following the orders of its programmers in one instance, and not only was able to learn romance and love, but in fact became a Marxist-Leninist-Maoist and a Communist. An android becoming a Communist, truly a vindication of the immortal science Marxist dialectical materialism!

Well, I have been reading through your report, and I must say, it certainly is a mixed bag for me! I suppose I will start with the not-very-good points, such as the cult of personality, the censorship, and everything else that I can think of that you restricted too much. Of course, now is a good time to mention that I am certainly not free from this - I used to have this phase myself, you know? Changed slightly for the better. The civil rights and everything, you have to give it to people. The political bits, ehh- I will admit, the oligarchy that The Sixty has is definitely in parallels to the power that you and the other leaders share, so I should not say too much about that when I am kinda practicing half of what you believe in. The lack of capitalism is, well, something. Look, I don't want to dwell too much on this, I am an ironic politician - I and the rest of the Valentians don't really pursue politics that deeply. What works for us, so long as no one else is suffering, is more than great enough. Ahh, now for the good. The NFTs,ahaha! I heard about those evil things, I am glad you don't like them. I don't like them, either! Anyone who tries to defend it, I will put my foot down just a few meters away from them; gives them a good scare, you should try it yourself (but you are not that big, hehe). And of course, computer science and IT centric nature of you. You are going to be very great friends with my wife! That is all the time I have for now, I got another guy tugging at my shoe.

And as for you, my little, err, person, I have a bit of difficulty reading through your database and the paragraph worth of your story. All I can say as of now is that, well, good on you for beating up those crazy guys, and instilling a decent government with political rights and liberty for all- uhh, funny, I thought I have read this from somewhere else. At least, there are so many nations out there. Anyway, good job fighting on the fronts. Do not die, is what I say.

It seems to me that as the saying goes "do not fight with evil shadows, because you will become one"; this saying tells us that despite fighting for the ideals that we believe are correct, sometimes it turns us into what we least expect. I lived and fought in the revolution against a dictatorship, although I have come to lead our nation, I have always thought in the freedom of individuals (be it political, social and economic). He does not seem like a bad person, but on the contrary, he has shown that he is a potentially splendid and benign person, something that I admire in leaders, but I do not leave aside the way to become something that I swear to destroy and not become.

"I remember hearing of Val. Many Lowbloodians looked up to these folk as all kings have a rather good relationship with them. And every time a ruler takes the throne I feel as if they take into consideration that maybe a foreign force will retaliate in such a way that this life taken will cause my life go be taken.

It's happened before, and it's horrifying to dome of us. Like I didn't know what was out there.

But it's odd you know. Time is distorted here, Val has seen alot of fallen souls. Yet still he finds Lowblood to be friendly.

It's a relief, but the spirits often time give a statement that explains the new rulers motives, ayleast some have.

While I did have heavy retaliation, I think Val has been one of the more understanding ones. And I appreciate that.

Also the fact that this gentle giant is so kind to others is rather refreshing to me.

Even Death knew the human condition, for he stands by to lead the departed souls of the deceased to Purgatory, where either Heaven or Hell awaits them. Your leader, with that being said, should know his people's weaknesses. Their vulnerabilities. That is a leader, despite his appearance, that a nation should have, and to strive for. "Dearest Grand President Karl Thygesen, what can I say of him? A military career at a young age reminds me of my own partisanship during the second world war, and what an admirable position it is to undertake. As for the democratic reforms he has made within his nation... I say the benefits are yet to be seen, despite the rather stable state of his nation, his decision to enact less than progressive reforms in a time progress is firmly needed, well, it leads me to believe he is less of a conservative and more of a radical traditionalist, which can be quite dangerous within a society, depending on whether your traditions are modernized and what exactly your traditions are, I should point to radical theocrats and the Soviets for that. Furthermore, his criticisms of our government structure are... thoughtful, but perhaps not entirely informed. I hold no dictatorial reign sir... for you are right, our nation is built and we are under no emergency status. The legal courts and senators hold that power and shall continue to lest the need arises to, to... what was the question, I'm rambling... regardless, Mister President Thygesen seems a well intentioned fellow with less than adequate understanding, not due to any lack of intelligence mind you, of the complexities of our government, but I admire him for the statesman and military officer that he is, and despite our differences, wish only prosperity unto him and his people." - Marshal Wilhelm Fatilly

I personally have no real bias against this, but I consider him to be your rull of the mill leader. If i were to be given information that is easier to Take in, I would be able to say more, But from the clutter I saw I do not really have anything bad to say about him.

Do they send everyone to Zoigai who is from African descend or only those from America. This is becoming quite confusing for me.

So you trained and became so strong that you can destroy a landmass the size of Austria? Wait what? So I didn't expect that, you must be a superhuman then. They apparently exist in your world. Either that or I'm misunderstanding your bio. After you became general, you managed to conquer your entire planet, and then it collapsed into civil war. Its not really a surprise since that often happens to countries that took over large territories. You went into hiding until you got caught and interrogated. Then you were let in back into society.

So what I got to say after reading this is... well... you may be a good general, but I don't think you would be really cut out for leadership. During the period of political instability, you ran away, even though you were a high ranking general. You probably could have done something. I don't know what, but you probably could. I don't know much about the position of papal chieftain, but I hope that its a position where screwing up doesn't have a lot of bad consequences... like civil war. That's all I have to say for now. Wasn't the supposed state you rebelled against a "New World Order?" Do they send everyone to Zoigai who is from African descent or only those from America. This is becoming quite confusing for me.

So you trained and became so strong that you can destroy a landmass the size of Austria? Wait what? So I didn't expect that, you must be a superhuman then. They apparently exist in your world. Either that or I'm misunderstanding your bio. After you became general, you managed to conquer your entire planet, and then it collapsed into civil war. It's not really a surprise since that often happens to countries that took over large territories. You went into hiding until you got caught and interrogated. Then you were let in back into society.

So what I got to say after reading this is... well... you may be a good general, but I don't think you would be really cut out for leadership. During the period of political instability, you ran away, even though you were a high ranking general. You probably could have done something. I don't know what, but you probably could. I don't know much about the position of papal chieftain, but I hope that it's a position where screwing up doesn't have a lot of bad consequences... like civil war. That's all I have to say for now. Bye...

Nothing better to do than answer these questions:

- 1. A future where everything that can go wrong for the idea of a "free man" quite literally does.*
- 2. The people who announced the death of my parents told me it was cancer. Even though it was pretty obvious they died from poisoning, I hoped for a better excuse but was slapped with that one.*
- 3. It was a first a Penal Colony, But within the first 3 years it had become a good place to send Africans and African Americans to.*

Nothing more, nothing less. I wouldn't expect anything different. I would hope that your empire crumbles and your grip on the worlds you've tortured slips away. All while you watch on, powerless to do anything about it.>>

Gonna do you first cus ive already seen it,

Some type of Dr.Gero Andriad leading this Squadron. From what I know for right now, It seems she is a russian pilot who was sent to the military for a crime. She quite literally looks like a movie villian, or at minumum someone who you dont ever want on your bad side. I cant say too much about her because I dont know enough.
