They're 5.5% Jewish, which means that (according to my math), they'd have a Jewish population of 13,750,000, which is more than both Israel and the United States and is comparable to 93% of all (religious) Jews alive in the OTL.

That's uh... impressive to say the least.

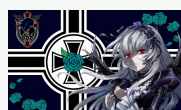

AN: Despite being descendants of the Nazis, Austria is given a considerable amount of autonomy (compared to Italy or Eastern Europe (which they still tried to genocide)), which is weird because you'd think the Nazis would want a pan-germanic realm rather than seemingly pointless divisions of power.

Unlike what I thought, and despite the Esperanto, Leskya is really a quasi-indigenous Arab (as much as Arabs can be indigenous in the Middle East and North Africa, at any rate) stateless society, rather than either a world government or a political organisation.

There's a Left Values political profile that follows a similar format to the nine axes. This is actually a surprise to me.
