The good thing with NS stats and government label is that it gives ideas to add to the factbook. like internal contradictions and policy reversals. For example the insane black market hike at the beginning of my nation gave me the police crackdown idea I could have in my factbook sometime in the future.

Cardboard box and snake decoys. I'm a unoriginal person. I think you really need to study the cultural and social customs of the enemy nation to so something sly or creative.

tbf making your shit op just so you can go "haha lookit i can blow your stuff up that much more effectively in what's meant to be a narrative-driven thing" and no other reason is still wank even if it's realistic wank. at least with bros like synne there's a narrative purpose for it besides "my gun is bigger than yours bitch."

Not really a cliché but just something that happens to me all the time, but people who look at "1466" and "PT" and immediately go "Ah, yes, that is the Gregorian calendar and it's definitely synched up with Earth, I understand this perfectly!". Even though they don't.
