All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

Skálmöld-Gleipnir

Meh, it had this cool dramatic start to it and I expected this awesome dark metal song, and as I was afraid it then kicks in and becomes something I'm not a huge fan of.

Icelandic scenery is beautiful as ever.

Edit: Second half is cooler.

Ulver-February MMX

"I am sick to death of metalheads disparaging Ulver because they're still expecting them to be making black metal, even though Nattens Madrigal came out in 1997. Honestly, it's barely worth mentioning that Ulver moved on, because that's quite blindingly obvious. No matter how good their black metal work is, they've been a completely different band for well over a decade.

It's been fourteen years. Go and listen to their old material and shut the fuck up."

I like this comment.
