Depending on the social and technological complexity of species they've targeted for assimilation/conquest, the Cosmic Mainframe employs means that aren't limited to brute force, the most notable of these being a relatively quick takeover of pre-industrial societies under a sort of God facade and gradual infiltration of influential elites via androids within more advanced groups.

Between the World Wars, Las Palmeras built up their navy, especially anti-submarine capabilities. Instead of battleships or carriers, they had long range aircraft.

Conscription in Coryana is only voluntary and can join to the forces when you are 18 or 19 in terms of age, however if you want to join the infantry branch then you must undergo training for a year or even two in diverse types of realistic battlefields, as for other branches however, it may take even long, given you must also learn how to operate their own transportation/special weaponry and armory their branch is on.

The predecessor to Alcala-Cordel was two distinct monarchies: the Alcalan Empire and an unnamed state of Cordel. These two states fought a war with each other that ended up a brutal, bloody stalemate between an Unstoppable Force (Alcalan troops) and Immovable Object (Cordel defenses), eventually resulting in a series of revolutions that finally united the two states.

12,393 islands together form the Hatsunesian Archipelago. The home islands are Hokkaidō, Midorijima, Mikuni, Kyūoku, Aoshima, Mikurajima, and Minamikushi. Most of the national territory is comprised of territory that isn't really fit for things like living or farming, therefore Hatsunia has a very high population density, with most of the population being concentrated in small urban and sub-urban areas.

Female inking are stronger and more prominent than its male counterpart, from biological physical capabilities to political representation. The sex ratio is 44 males per 100 females, which may bring some... interesting consequences (though the potential supply-demand problem might have been countered by the quite large size of the LGBT population). However, the current New Spiedskan government has been generally tolerant and inclusive to everyone, including non-Inklings, though sadly a seminal civil war was needed for the state to reach such level.

Dwipantara is an Islamist fundamentalist state in Indonesia (Makassar) and is basically ISIL or Jemaah Islamiyah that managed to gain territory and became even more fundamentalist. They kill LGBT people and ban music. Opposition to the regime is widespread and includes moderates, and atheist detractors who has the fox, and wearing fox masks as symbols of their anti-reactionary movement.
