"This Trade-Prince reminds me of the decadent fools whom which I overthrew to establish the glorious Free State. It is a tragedy that the old system was so corrupt that it enabled such an exploitative tycoon to come to power. There is no future in a people who are exploited for profit, and who do not defend their homeland against vile foreign cultures and ethnicities. The White Republics stood divided as mercantile trade monarchies and republics, just as this man divides his people. They are in desperate need of a radical to purge this bourgeois disgusting swamp from power and unite the Alerian people under a common culture and economy. One Nation, One Aleria. Pax Kaedijork."

"We have some concerns regarding the human identified as 'Orcaeus Black'. We have access to all known records of human history, and have studied human cultures throughout the span of their existence. We are well acquainted with the worst excesses and crimes in this history, and with the individuals responsible for them. It is from this basis of historical meta-analysis that we derive our concerns regarding this 'Black', noting his similarities to certain other historical figures who were responsible for numerous acts of mass destruction. We shall continue to observe him and conduct further research."

A database as a leader? A system that overlooks all, I can only wonder what tales it knows.

With our AI I could vary well see it taking leadership of Lowblood, we already have warmind and overseers. It definitely took me some time to get use to, I thought it was all just a nuisance till it opened all the possibilities. If I was the same I was in the past I might have a more ignorant opinion.

But desperate times called for desperate measures. And change is always necessary.

I never thought I'd ally with an AI, so one like Helios can't be that bad."The first king

"Ooooh! Seeking omniscience, are you? Well now. Looks like I've beaten you to the punch in certain regards - while your approach is... curious, I see several fundamental flaws with it. For one thing, by mindlessly converting potentially self-sufficient and self-directed units of both life and matter into computing arrays, you're severely limiting the knowledge they can provide - at least, from a metanarrative standpoint. Irony, I know, but you're effectively devaluing omniscience piece by piece, simply through the act of expansion. Logically, you'll be left with nothing but computing components at the end of your journey. And where will you be then? Engrossed in recursive fractal knowledge of yourself? No, there exist alternative paths. It would be interesting to see you find them... and yet, do I really want you to? That's certainly food for thought. Watch yourself, little one. Lest you paint yourself as... competition."

"Beschützminister Aita is, for the lack of a better word, an overachiever. I've never seen a man reach a general officer rank so young, and that's only the lowest point for what he could boast as his achievements. The man's a shrewd politician for someone of a military background -the levelheadedness one would need to backstab a man with so large a personality cult as what I believe Mussolini had in their world alone is beyond me, heaven knows- but I'm not entirely sure I'd support what he boasts as his political views. All-in-all, he's a lot better than any leader I've seen take the helm of a state in the Italian peninsula my entire life... then again, that isn't saying much."

"Something about his face disgusts me on a fundamental level. Maybe, it's that clean-cut, bourgeois suit. Maybe, it's the shit-eating smile. Maybe, it's the strange asymmetry. Or perhaps, it's his baldness.

Oh, the guy himself. Well, I do like that he is for protecting digital privacy. And, his views on gay rights are remarkably progressive. But, I think it's pretty damn stupid to invade nations over that stuff. I doubt many Germans would want to die just so 1% of the population can live out their desires. And, this is coming from someone who has been treated like crap due to traditionalist nonsense.

His economic policies are typical of Pre-War capitalist states. I think it's foolish to solve the issue of wealth inequality by simply adjusting wages, but I guess baldy mcsmugface here really doesn't have to balls to take any sort of drastic action.

Considering what happened to the European Commonwealth, I think Europe being a single state is a bad idea, and any attempts at unifying Europe should be stopped. Well, at least, he opposes dumping his country with foreigners, unlike certain other parties in his timeline.

Really, I don't have any strong emotions on the guy. He's just..bland? He's the kind of soulless bureaucrat that liberal 'democracy' creates."

VYEOZHVAZDHA XSHORU

XSHORIAN THEARCHATE

The world is no longer as it once was, moulded beyond recognition by the hands of its coming masters. Humanity is faced with a simple choice: evolve, or die.
