"Hmm... let's start with just his titles alone. Premier? Okay. C-in-C of armed forces? Okay... but Director of the NLEC? Umm... a tad much if you ask me. Now to his policies. I agree with his doling out of welfare to those who actually need it, unlike those slackers in Lemberg*. But in some ways it goes both too far and a bit short. I mean, like for the elderly and sick, they can't work, even if they wanted to. This isn't 1820. It's 2020 in your universe! This deserves international condemnation. Subsidization of education is good, as it enables a bright young generation to better your nation in the future, and healthcare as well.

Miroslavsky's authoritarian, Soviet-esque policies are more appalling to me than his welfare stance, which I begrudgingly partially agree with. His different treatment of people because of past offences is less than pleasing, like bro, have you heard that harsher punishment leads to people simply hiding their crimes? Along with his tolerance of dictatorships, he is utterly unfit to rule in this day and age. Social conservatism is as obsolete as a Game Boy, if not more.

However, he seems to be a good host for diplomatic meetings, though he is uncompromising and in a sense, annoying. Probably just boomer shit though. I like his ability to cross party lines and work with other politicians, something that's close to heresy here. Oh wait, he surrounds himself with a cabal of yes-men. Statement rescinded.

His socialistic economic policies make me believe he really is a communist of sorts, and is ostensibly acting like a "centrist" until he feels it's time, though it's likely I'm just being paranoid, since he booted the tankies outta government. Ugh, complete nationalization of utilities and all that just leads to less competition, and that leads to less innovation. Wait, he part-opened Zitragrad's mining sector? Disregard all the previous statements! Sir, would you like to open your nation to Deltian mining corporations? It'll boost both of our economies! Overall opinion: Best I've had of a man in my life!"

The Statement on Sandre

"A master's degree in Statistics, Bachelor in politics, and other education? Huh, he has got a lot of education, we are impressed. Now, let's see his life."

"It seems that his childhood was quite tragic - losing his grandparents and friends in a plane accident when he was young - no wonder he got a mental breakdown. Still, it is good to see that his marks were good, and he wasn't bullied too much, despite being called a nerd. Also impressive to see him bouncing back from unemployment - the crisis of 2008 was a catadysm of many downfalls of businesses and regimes. However, while politically he is not the worst, he is definitely not the greatest of presidents, especially if compared to other figures of past. While stance on fighting against climate change is admirable, reducing the amount of nukes to just 200 screams too much of cookie-cutter liberalism, for which US liberals are infamous - better should have kept them as deterrent. The libertarian tendencies of legalizing weed and supportive stance on free market capitalism is a no-bueno either, and not something we would like to see as metastasis in there. Overall, we are neutral on him."

This Week: December 1976; the Argentines had officially commenced their general offensive against Patagonia in the so-called "Christmas Offensive". The Royal Argentine Army with their M16s and M60 tanks had blitzed through the Patagonian border with Blackshirts conducting a tactical withdrawal. While the Blackshirts inflicted heavy casualties as they retreated. We asked General Leopoldo Galtieri, the one in charge of this operation, on his thoughts about the prospects of an Argentine victory. He had this to say... "Tengo absoluta confianza en nuestra victoria. Regresa y te dispararemos" before wheezing.

"What is this Directorate that the higher-ups are talking about? Don't these Karapalkaks know that with too many voices in government, they would have a fragile system and would be nearly divided in anything! How do these people are able to agree with each other without some sort of power struggle that would naturally emerge from such system without a head? But I applaud all of you for doing such a fine job in driving out the Uzbek invaders and defending Islam from the tumor that is Sunni extremism. But I agree with all of you on your stance on democracy. After all, you need to have a full stomach and a good job to care about voting *laughs*. I also didn't think that the Aral sea would dry up but I guess it's inevitable considering what the Soviets had done in the region."

The State of Iran □ "Independence, Freedom, and the Iranian Nation"
Welcome to Iran | Overview | Anthem | Retcon Underway | Set in: 1980

After the success of the Nojeh Coup; Iran becomes a transitional regency, hybrid (military) regime which clamps down on everything politically Islamic. Now suffering from an Afghan-like insurgency from the Quds and MEK, and intricate deep state politics between the Gang of Four.

The "Persagonian Republic" is a misnomer. We are a transitional regency.

Oswald's Mood: Pensive and Critical

“The efforts it must have taken to remove the futurist elements from the lands overtaken by the Futurists gives some merit to Governor-General Galtieri. And since we both share a common hatred for the anarchy that plague the lands of Patagonia while Konrad ruled, it would be foolish to leave the region under the existing regime. But, at the same time, his heavy-handed violence to execute supposed political enemies by hanging them by the neck while their aerial transports hover in the sky, I believe there is no fitting argument to justify his barbarous actions and how far will he take it.

“On the discussion of his military stratagem—if his version of the Imperial Bewegungskrieg is simply to send waves and waves of soldiers in the face of enemy resistance, such a strategy is pointless when it fails to achieve the objective of destroying all enemy forces. He may be a military man in charge over an area, this military strategy of his is going to cost him more than simply losing his responsibilities and position as Governor-General.”

"Oswald is competent, clever, and extremely dangerous. I have to appreciate his skill and commitment to the values of his nation, but those values are twisted. It is a shame because, as a person, he would make an excellent Vincosian (and not just because he enjoys meat), but he has been raised on broken virtue and corrupt morals. He is unlikely to ever see the true value of liberty and meritocracy."
