Because we are dieselpunk and don't have cool space lasers. Also, I should specify the base is in Vuperian territory.

I just like romanticism

To be honest, I have always believed that romanticism was a reaction to the distancing of humans from their emotions and spirit and giving in to the new age, an age of machines. Although, by definition, reactionary, romanticism is indeed a good method of finding out what it means to be human in an age dominated by the artificial.
