Emuus would try and confront Supreme Man, but to no avail. The sheer force of Supreme Man's punches sends Emuus flying away, then Supreme man teleports to Emuus and... Emuus is gone? Supreme man now teleports back to earth, and behind Master Man

Umeus just goes to the Penguin Republic, picks a random penguin, and makes it a god.

"The Freezing One" now exists.

I'll let you choose what the Freezing One does.

Anyways Umeus goes back to fighting Supreme Man.

It can freeze people and can fly (like every god can do that). It also can change deserts of its choice and turn it into a cold wasteland (pretty much the equivalent of Antarctica). Just remember that it only can change deserts and nothing else.

Uno Reverse Savior returns back to the fight. And after a while, manages to trick Supreme Man into attacking Uno Savior head on. Supreme Man charges at Savior, charging up his fists with psionic and supernatural energy, his war cry screeches throughout the entire sea.

Burrito Chimichanga uses a teleportation device to the portal right above Supreme Man and jumps him. Thus Supreme Man's flight path is ruined. Then Uno Reverse Savior rushes up instinctively and yeets himself and Supreme Man into the astral realm.

In the astral realm, away from Earth, Uno Reverse Savior and Supreme Man stare at each other in fury. Both create weapons from their own hands and prepare to fight each other.

Fortunately, The Freezing One (you know that Penguin that suddenly got turned into a god?) acted quite fast and saved their penguin bros from the flooding. Now they live off of the icy deserts the Freezing One created.

Bobland builds dykes to keep water levels from sinking their island. And yes, they are quite big ones. Meanwhile, the penguins in the Atacama desert (now the Atacama ice cap) start vibing.

What the fu-

WHY ARE CHUNKS OF MARS FAZING THE PLANET IM CONFUSED

Well, Supreme Man seems to have flung Deimos into Mars(even though the moon would have fragmented before ever hitting the surface and would barely affect areas of Mars outside its frankly small crater), and chunks of Mars are all over the System. Also Mars is now near-devoid of life.

(Just as a note, ignore everything Ashotu says, he just wants attention and he thinks he'll get it by de-railing the RP.)

Back on M'yni'ah's warship, Capuchin-Alpha salutes the Catgirl leader with a smile, and leaps off the ship. meeting up with a 100-strong battalion of power-armor-equipped capuchins calling themselves the Power Primates. They jet towards the Nuuk railgun complex, followed by a cargo vessel equipped with relativistic railgun ammo. Their aim is not to eliminate the complex, but take it for themselves instead.

They take advantage of the chaos caused by the Martian fragments hitting the city, and sneak into the complex nearly undetected. But they were caught soon before reaching the control room, and a battle between the Power Primates and the Nuuk Railgun Network's security force. But despite being outnumbered, their technological superiority and ferocious fighting style won them the day.

The supply ship finished loading the relativistic rounds into the network, and Capuchin and Catgirl military engineers deployed around Nuuk upgraded the railguns to be able to shoot at near-light-speed. Now, for the Power Primates and Capuchin-Alpha, all that was left was to find their target.

Supreme Man had taken many Capuchin lives, and worst of all, he had all but obliterated the homeland of the Capuchin Polity's closest ally.

As Capuchin-Alpha sat near a targeting computer, he tried to imagine what poor M'yni'ah must be going through. Yes, the catgirls on Titan and in the Asteroid Belt were fine, but they were nowhere near numerous enough to continue the Catgirl Republic as it was. Her nation had taken a massive blow with the destruction of Mars. He would need to have a genuine talk with her later. Preferably after Supreme Man was either subdued or dead.
