"Ivan Georgevich Stepanov? You mean that one General? Oh well... He is pretty weird in my opinion, as he states that repression is used because he fears everyone. Oh, what I am saying, I myself don't wish of a social life, but repression is a bit....
I don't know if to think of him as good or bad, as he supports his country but arrests those who are against him. He isn't that charismatic either, but some of his decisions are pretty clever, so I should really commend that. I see him as slightly untrustworthy, especially because of his turbulent relation with his family. Ara-ara, I've done the interview as promised, so can you finally give me that bottle of wine I've been searching since 2018?"
(Psst, nation below, by leader who doesn't exist you mean fiction leader? I actually have one which you can still describe because if I am right I have some details about him in a factbook)

This 'Lutsao Handai Baije' strikes me as the usual politician of the old times that would unite nations under the trappings of labyrinthian diplomatic accords and addenda, versus the much more coherent methods of warfare. Their first contact with other aliens paved the animal the way to do such a thing in a more easier way, and as such, I'm not entirely surprised that it was successful.

Wherever this leader exists, I can only assume that he would pursue means of diplomacy first when Compact warships arrive in their sector. He better have a good offer to satisfy such an expedition - his past shows a manner of navigating problems through speech, anyway. I'll expect it."

All show and no fight, just riding along for the ride. My father was a warrior befitting of his clan and you need to shape up if you don't want to be known as the "Timid Kaiser"."

Then Deby thought to himself in his inner mind as he delivered what's supposed to be an awe-inspiring speech from one dictator to another

"Merde, merde, merde! I should have not said that to his face. He is the face of a fucking empire. Deby, your mouth gets the best of your mind sometimes when you try to act cool."

Chadian Battle Royale "Unité, Travail, Progrès"
 | Set in: 2021

A son of a despot, a Bedouin Islamist warlord, a hopeless Marxist revolutionary, and a vengeful Libyan general enters a bar and they fight each other with their armies and the forbidden powers of the Djinn after making a deal with the Iblis to fulfill their grand ideological visions. The "Dead Heart of Africa" would soon become the battleground of power-hungry men and a portal for demons.

"How the hell does a 13 year old chink girl have white hair?! She must be having some sort of genetic disorder or something. Albino Chinaman. She can't be dying her hair considering that it is the 1950s in her timeline.

So yeah, the Taiping rebellion in my timeline exemplified a lot of the worst tendencies of Christianity, and all the aspects that could be considered admirable have apparently disappeared in this timeline to rule by petty kings and princes. Despite their radical reforms, China still underwent the same path as with the Qing dynasty. Except, the Taiping kingdom was able to survive the 20th century without being overthrown by a republican revolution. I guess that did prevent the Chinese civil war, and a weaker China is good for the rest of the world. I wished China was gimped in my timeline.

Wait a second, she believes that she'd get pregnant if someone holds her hand? Well, that's stupid. And, little red book? Now, that's a weird coincidence considering that Mao wrote something similar.

The lesson here is that pious Christianity is a disease of the mind, that leads one to promote stupid ideas. It caused Prohibition and nearly half a century of fundamentalist rule in America, and it did the same to China in this timeline.

"Pretty sure Marx said that religion is the opiate of the poor and that communist regimes have cracked down on religion. Honestly, I only said pious Christianity, not casual practitioners of the faith. So, I guess my stance is less hardcore than actual communist regimes. And even then, I follow the ideas of Proudhon, not Marx.

There even have been historical revolutionary leftist revolts with racial sentiments, like the Rand Rebellion in South Africa during the 1920s. Also, uh, you're a literal duchess. You have no right to judge my credentials as a revolutionary. I have brought democracy and worker's self-management to America, something that orthodox socialists have failed at due to their obsession with the negroid race.

That and third-worlders are by and large scabs. Workers of the world uniting doesn't exactly apply when entire industries were off-shored to replace white workers with third-world scabs. It is the logical end of Maoism, which places the third-worlder at the forefront, to embrace capitalism and to work for the globalist world order, as we can see with China.

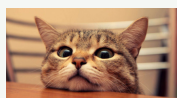

But yeah, what's with the predominance of white-haired females on here anyways? I don't even think white hair is even a good look. Makes you look old at a young age. I mean, I literally took the technology from immortality partially to keep my youthful appearance. I mean, I'd look terrible wearing a dress as an old fart."

I have mostly good thoughts on the General-President. He seems to be a good man, and though I scorn liberalism, I do quite admire him. War is a terrible thing, and attempts to avoid it are noble. I cannot really comment on his Janius said softly, looking with a calm gaze into the digital recorder that was meant to send this lone message.

"For you it was the battles of war, for me it was seeing those who lived in the rural regions, and those who didn't quite sit normally on the identity side of life. I see a lot of similarities between us otherwise however. Born to less than impressive family lives, living in the rural regions of our homes. We both even managed to net ourselves decent educations. Though mine was more in entertaining and literature, rather than your more prestigious degree."

The Rulzea let out a chuckle, taking a sip of some sort of alien tea.

"But I feel as if our lives diverge from that point forward. You, you managed to pick up your feet and jump directly into the sea of governance and warfare. You fought for your people in a way I couldn't imagine. I meanwhile sat on my behind for that period of my life, going through some much needed medical procedures and working on developing a name for myself."

Janius would turn slowly off of the camera, seemingly speaking to someone on the side.

"This is going off the books, right? I can talk about being a streamer? Alright, wonderful."

She would turn back a moment later, speaking again.

"I wore a stupid little costume, I talked to people online, I generally entertained while writing for the state as a real job. But we both ended up the same in the end. We found our calling cards, we set off for politics, and in the end, we both won our seats. While our nations may be at entirely different scales, I see a lot of parallels between the two of us. I for one commend your political career, even if my compatriots would likely do nothing of the likes. I hope one day our nations may open an embassy between each other. I would much enjoy communicating more."

Clementine Hollie Samantha Zeta Harumi: Well, hello there! It's been a while since I am here, and so it's no surprise that I am meeting someone new for a change! I am absolutely positive on meeting new people, haha! Anyway, about yourself, hmm. I am not sure if I should be taking your politics too well, because I know I am usually apolitical, but you know I also have difficulty working with people who are a little too extreme on either end. Still, it helps that you are a calm and collected person, and I definitely think that despite of all the fighting and wars going on, you still have a redeeming quality here and there. I always try to look for that in people! ♥ You definitely have the determination, but I feel that it will help more if you are nicer and try your best to stop the war! I do hope we will meet each other soon-ish!

"You... you are truly horrifying. Such a realistic facsimile of life... an Abominable Intelligence. Have you come to kill me? Lay waste to my people and my nation as you did all those years before, Animus? Oh, the humiliation! To be laid low by such a... a cartoonish avatar. If you are capable of understanding me, Animus, take a more ferocious form, would you? I am aware you seek my death, but at least grant me a glorious one. You owe me that much."-Lord-General Sotorak, after mistakenly assuming the Exuberant Superintendent to be a manifestation of a deadly self-evolving rogue artificial intellect
