recently there is a federal law that prohibits that, the company doing that will be fined corporately (meaning that its a hefty fine) in accordance to their business size (so the amount of fine varies by how large the company is by value).

no, zarulia is not those libleft nations so there is a dedicated sewer for industrial waste anyway.

There are public events, when sheriffs can do this as a public campaign. But if outside those events, they wil be sternly told to do their job. And if this repeats, a rebuke or so. And if some accident happens, they will be responsible for them. If kid runs and loses a gun, sheriff will have to replace it, and if gun turns out to be loaded or something, he will be liable for all damages if they occur.

Everyone in the case, including the captain, the pirate and the perp are found guilty of high treason (organized crime and corruption especially in the military is indeed high treason) and warrants a death penalty or death through forced labor.

Because this involves a real person, I'll explain the legal situation in this country instead of giving a direct answer.

In Themiclesia, a person claiming self-defence to excuse themselves from homicide charges must satisfy that (1) the threat to life is reasonably believed to be real and imminent, (2) the threat is unavoidable, and (3) that the action taken in avoidance of said threat is the option of least damage. That is, if you have a both a lethal and non-lethal option, both being available and adequate, to deal with a threat to your life that is reasonably believed to be real, imminent, and unavoidable, you cannot select the lethal option because it is not the option of least damage; if you select it in the presence of an available non-lethal option, you're guilty of murder. If you have a pistol that you can fire at someone meaning to kill you, or you have a bomb that will do the same and also blow up a few more houses, you must select the former; if you select the latter, you're guilty of murder. The excuse of self-defence must also be proportionable to the threat present: if someone enters your property or robs your safe without an intention to kill you, you cannot justify the killing of that person as a defence of your right to your movables or to enjoy your real property.

If it's you making guns at home, all your assets will be seized and everyone you've contacted and everything you've done will be traced to see if it's part of a larger operation. Also, 7 years prison time max. If you're a company doing that, your company will be seized and jail time for 5-10 years.

Clearing hostile fauna and flora from a death world. Time to put those fire skills to good use.

Going AWOL with a load of stolen top secret equipment and setting yourself up as a dictator of a third world nation for two months before being apprehended by a non-disclosed intelligence organization.

My travels take me many places, from the scorching sands to the cold, dark vacuum of space. But I always return to my friends and family at The Pub.

AWOL implies that the person is in a military position of some kind, so there's the fine for going AWOL in the first place. Stealing top-secret documents is punishable by a prison term not exceeding three years, and setting oneself up as a dictator is an offence against that nation's laws, notwithstanding the fact that we do not extradite offenders to states which practice capital punishment.

That'd be a bit of a surprise, seeing as there's only water for hundreds of miles around, but they somehow do happen.

You'd likely end up under temporary detention, while decisions & paperwork would be made to determine whether you'd stay or not. If it's the latter, expect to be put on the next flight available to your country of origin, with a three-year travel ban placed upon you, too.

This case really confuses me... are we talking about someone that has been coerced to share it? Or the person that shared it originally? Or the one that created it? I'm just confused.

The penalty for murder in Andronya is death, and you could make a good case that distributing/creating such a thing would be murder, but if you were already under its effects and you shared it it's, not really a crime, since you were forced.
