Isis-So Did We

My dad used to listen to this album when I was younger, so I know this album quite well. Even liked it back then (Then stopped caring about metal and couldn't even handle much instrumental metal, before managing to expand again). So I liked post-metal type of stuff before I even was aware I did (Or sludge metal, whatever)

It's interesting how the music tastes of those around us (especially parents) can affect our own music tastes. If it weren't for my parents, I'd be listening to all sorts of rock now, instead of the genres I listen to.

Isis-Backlit

The funny thing is my dad put this music on a video game, which is partly why I know it. That game being a racing game where you could add your own music to it (Why don't more games do that damn it?), and you could flip through your own personal stations. My dad put some pretty weird stuff on there....Which isn't a surprise, being my dad.

3rd on RYM. People on RYM have good taste, which doesn't surprise me really. You're not really going to go out of your way to make an account on a site like Rateyourmusic to go and listen to some Justin Bieber or One Direction. Or Last.FM all that much from the looks of it.

I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.
