(Wow, an Islamic Hispania is a rarity. Hopfully it's creative too)

The Umayyad Empire controls, with the exception of the Low Countries, everything an Iberian State actually controlled throughout its history and then some more. It also maintains dominion over almost all of Italy, only leaving a quasi-independent Rome -presumably under control of the Church.

There was tons of info to learn about but one fact stuck out to me.

Wha- Why is that just a "rare" occurrence?

The Navy is given much more attention and funding unlike in real life where the Army is greatly prioritized. I'd imagine the Imperial Navy being SEA's equivalent of the British royal navy.

That they have chosen to ignore the rule of the road, and that rather than keeping to the left side or to the right side of the road, they have opted for a more "freestyle" approach. That the Black Death wasn't as disastrous to Occitania as it was to other countries, because Occitania had quarantined the borders and places of outbreaks.
And they had no bad superstitions about cats. Could that be attributed to Catharism?

Their national sport archetype is that of 'intgaming' which focuses on philosophical and logical Q&A competitions of various types. Makes me think of an episode of this one show called 'Sliders' in which one alternate US' national sport was a form of basketball in which people with the ball had to answer physics and mathematics problems.
