Tabako is also known as Islas de Azucar, due to it's past sugarcane plantations run by slave owners up to early 19th century

Nice use of Spanish. I assume your in the Caribbean?

Selanese Empire

- As I've been asked to

If you claim to support equality, you shouldn't be giving privileges to those who do not contribute to society, or biting the hand that feeds you.

There are many privileged few who abuse the freedom given to them to bite the hand that feeds - to quote my favorite poem Ozymandias "The hand that mocked them, and the heart that fed;" (an expression used in the poem to describe the sculptor) could be reiterated to mean that one with privilege should not propagate hate believing themselves to be saviors, which is a dilemma the world experiences today, the wording used in your quote "If you claim to support equality, you shouldn't be giving privileges to those who do not contribute to society" is objectively wrong, I assume you used privilege here in the same manner as "white privilege" or "first-world privilege", but those who physically cannot contribute to society should not be barred from the privilege of life, or the privilege of being supported by the government, the quote has good intention, but fails to address the issue that there are people who have a physical inability to contribute, even if they so want to.

Emperor of Bonapartic France and defender of the French, Napoleon IV.

By virtue of being the only thing there.

And since it's a monarch's title, shouldn't "Defender" have the 'd' capitalised?
