Is it proper to have the song title first, or the artist? I've never really figured it out.

I do it artist then song name, and a lot of people do it that way, but I'm not sure it really matters. Just how I automatically did it. Even my sister started doing it song name first, than artist, and I automatically expected she'd do it the same way I did automatically

Though I kinda think I did it like that because I saw others do it, but I dunno.

It's not at all musical, this meeting I'm listening to. On the other hand, I did get a Ten Years After greatest hits album the other day, I need to spend some time with that.

Bad mod, get off your phone and pay attention to the meeting! ☐

Waiting for the End is one of the only Linkin Park songs I actually like...

I mean, we can actually create a mathematical definition for evolution in terms of the evolutionary algorithm and then write code to deal with abstract instances of evolution, which basically equates to mathematical proof that evolution works. All that remains is to show that biological systems replicate in such a way as to satisfy the minimal criteria required for evolution to apply to them, something which has already been adequately shown time and again. At this point, we've pretty much proven that not only can evolution happen, it pretty much must happen since it's basically impossible to prevent it from happening.

This Will Destroy You-Glass Realms

I dunno why, but I really quite like this ambient piece. I actually think Anthony Fantano describes the album quite well, because it's pretty much how I feel about it. Not the greatest, but has some great sounds.

"Where I am incredibly impressed is with the textures here! The sounds are fantastic, and some of the best I've heard this year. They're kind of a saving grace for this album. The guitars sound amazing, and the swells here are so subtle. Sure, this could be labeled as "post-rock" at some points, but This Will Destroy You are working with tools that just seem out of this world as several points on this album."~Theneedledrop

I know I refer to him a lot, but he really is my favorite music reviewer.

This Will Destroy You-Communal Blood

Taking typical post-rock songs to such a low ambient level is nice, but I prefer Hammock in that regard.
