You speak French? Parfait! ☐

That doesn't really mean they speak French. I can just as easily copy that from the posted YouTube link, or from what they just said.

Как вы делаете сегодня? Russian

Hvernig ert þú að gera í dag? Icelandic

Wie geht es dir heute? German

Hvordan gjør du i dag? Norwegian

It really doesn't take knowing a language to be able to copy stuff.

I am lame and only know English, so if I didn't just type those out in Google Translate, I'd have no idea what that says.

I like the video, too. Simple, but effective at being artistic, and kinda creepy, in my opinion.

She varies quite a bit actually. As you can see from that song, which is quite a lot different then her major single (Which I found decent. At least better than the ones that could be up there, like Miley Cyrus and Katy Perry).

And she's the youngest person in 26 years to be on the top of the charts, at the age of 16.

If you like these, I kind of wonder what you would think of The Knife and Fever Ray. They're in the same kind of general synth poppy pop realm, though I think both The Knife and Fever Ray are better (But also have been working for years, and not just releasing their first album)

Hmm, that Eyvind Kang album wasn't bad, but it had too much of something I've never really been able to get into that much.

Eyvind Kang-10:10 (The Beloved One)

Song gets kinda repetitive after 10 minutes, but it slowly gets more and more dramatic...and it sounds completely different then the album of theirs I know best.

I've never really liked his music. But since Damian Marley is in it, I had to check it out. Not usually my cup of tea but I like that song.

And on those Lorde songs you gave me:

I thought the instrumental was ok, but I didn't like her vocals on that track.

I've never gone out of my way to listen to this album until now, but I know this song REALLY well, along with the 2 others I posted before. I've heard it so many times from my parents in the car, in the house, whatever, that it is ingrained in my memory.
