Apparently they are currently in a state of hostilities with Maxtopia after a terrorist attack involving an 'admissible'. I think they meant to say something else.

Goddammit, ninja'd...

So, Coryana has this thing called the 'Musknet', which makes me wonder why they would base an entire communications network off of Yak pee. Different strokes, I guess.

Political parties don't officially exist, but the primary political issue upon which the population focuses on is the role of the central government and the constitutional status of the confederacy as... well, a confederacy. Some advocate for greater centralisation, others greater decentralisation. Politics is, as always, divided along rural/urban lines.

25,000 Phoenicians evacuated Carthage before it was conquered by Rome. Those refugees went into hiding in the Atlas Mountains in Northern Africa and their population grew over the next few centuries. After the fall of the Roman Empire, they migrated across the Mediterranean Sea. In the 15th century, New Carthagea was founded. It is mostly located on the southern coast of France and the nearest islands, and has a high levels of civil freedoms and economic development.

Waisnor briefly proclaimed independence after WWI but failed to develop a comprehensive state apparatus and as a result was crushed and annexed to Poland.

What if Eastern Rome survived?

Basic Overview: Basically an althist where Basil II actually has decent successors who build on his achievements, resulting in a STRONK ERE that beats back the Sejuks and eventually does it's own reconquesta in the Middle East. Also, The Crusades never happened, the Viking conquest of Britain succeeded, Genghis Khan died as a young prisoner in a tribal camp, Alexander Nevsky united Russia, and the HRE became a centralized state and destroyed France and the Normans.

They're a federal republic in the very late 1500s. This seems to go against everything I know about political history and I'm not sure how to think of the Dutch anymore.

AN also has a very big love for pre-Enlightenment history, with all the wooden ships n religion and whatnot. Too much for my liking. I have read through your factbooks before though mate, so don't worry about me not reading anything.

The nation is a libertarian socialist federated semi-direct democracy that is well known for its political and civil freedoms, but it is also known for its advances in technology most notably wind and solar technology. Just quickly going over their history a bit, it seems like they have had a rather turbulent (but interesting) history. Also since their revolution, most of their society has embraced a more casual appearance and fashion even down to the politicians. Also, I did find the breakdown of their mint and their currency to be a nice read.
