BN, your crime is industrial sabotage. The criminal in question has been hired by one factory to carry out a rampage on another. How are the various parties treated under the law?

Industrial sabotage is punishable by 10-15 years in prison + a fine decided by the victim, can't be unreasonable though, the company responsible will be fined on an amount decided by the victim, as long as it's not unreasonable and may even be shut down by the government depending on how severe it was.

Below nation, your crime is illegally smuggling drugs through borders

The hirer is guilty of actual conspiracy against the state, for which the minimum penalty is term of 15 years hard labor, and the maximum is a life term of same; it also carries a fine of any damages caused, plus YF$100,000. This may also be used to support a claim that any conspirators are eligible for the involuntary euthanasia program. The saboteur, on the other hand, is guilty of either attempted treason (if they were stopped before any destruction could occur), minor treason (if less than YF$10,000 worth of damage occurred and no critical infrastructure was damaged), capital treason (for any more severe acts). Attempted treason carries a penalty of between 5 and 50 years imprisonment, plus a fine of up to YF$20,000 for each year imprisoned. Minor treason carries a penalty of between 2 and 20 years hard labor, plus a fine of whatever damages occurred in the commission of the crime, plus YF$70,000. Capital treason may be punished either by life imprisonment without the possibility of release, or the death penalty.

Normally 30-40 years, however if the amount of victims is especially large or if they were especially cruel in nature, life sentence or death penalty

Execution by firing squad, counted as masterminding a crime through someone else. If this is the case, the one who actually carried the shooting out stands a good chance of avoiding execution depending on the circumstances
