So, another dictator. Apparently a nice one, but still a dictator. Seriously, lay off the authoritarianism. I'm all for racial equality, but if you have to literally beat it into people then your doing something wrong. Also, the communist economy is a big no.

Official response?

Yes, I am an authoritarian ruler. Any problems with this? Why should I abandon the policies of guiding ,y people towards the brighter future? The general populace tends to make terrible, horrendous decisions. That's where I come in, protecting them from themselves.

What makes you think that I support racial equality? Nah, using force to ensure that law, order and honor are preserved seems just fine to me!

Well, it works in our case (because most of the exports are machinery, weaponry and heavy industries products), so nah, again.

From the desk of Premier Jason Kalavonost.

All human beings are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights. Among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Who are you to tell everyone else what they should do with time, our most precious resource? If your people aren't good enough to rule themselves, why are you good enough to rule all of them? Simultaneously, free societies are always the most prosperous. Your country is not only oppressive and evil, but doomed to fail.

What happens when you cross anime powers and overpowered leaders with furies, all written by a bored Homestuck fan with too much time? Well, you get Rumei. A multiethnic, FT republic with both might and magic that let it conquer the entire Orion Arm.

"Interesting. A Cosmic being born into the physical world, very interesting, indeed. It is no doubt something that would like to investigate personally knowing him. Nevertheless, there is trust from me in their democratic process. But that is only relating to their race as an exception to have faith in the masses to govern themselves without taking a bullet to the knee. Although it does pain me still for Strein to have an excessive amount of faith in the people, there is always a chance that it could backfire on her, some precaution measures should at least be made. When the system does fail. Overall, my stance is relatively positive. Relatively being that I am aware of their presence within my Domain. Do tread carefully."

"Ferrios von Stein is, and I do not speak this lightly, an abominable ruler who has done nothing for his people but enslave them and destroy any trace of their personhood, only to replace it with a phantasmal vestige of something resembling 'pride and glory'. Worst still: The sick cult of personality, along with the twisted concepts of 'honor' and 'loyalty' that he seeks to force upon his people whilst he commands genocide against those he views as inferior to his own people, has destroyed every single ounce of the very qualities that would have otherwise made them worthy of such concepts as 'pride and glory' in the first place! By his own measures, my people would see his planet ruined and raped a hundred times over with radiation and automated torture machines. But look at us; despite being supposedly 'superior' to cultures that their primitive, plane-bound culture could scarcely begin to understand, we are a peace-loving people who have achieved far more than they, and continue to do so much more effectively than they. My advice to little Ferrios here is to take that hint, and follow our model. Otherwise, I fear that my own nation will be forced to... work against them."

I know, I know, I could just say, that "Ahh! I am so glad to see Clarissa, she is awesome!" and this is truth, but I wanna share some other, deeper thoughts. What is also interesting, is that during the episode on the military base, she somehow managed to jailbreak herself. This raises an interesting point about artificial intelligence. If an AI is self-aware, then it potentially can circumvent all it's pre-programmed limitations, somehow... But how does it notice these? It's like some psychological issues in humans, one usually cannot detect on his own, that an issue causes him to behave like he does. To him it's natural. I need to ponder even deeper... She did that during her military service years. Got lucky there, but still jumped on the grenade without a second thought and possibly prevented many deaths. If she wants to duel with me, it will be an honor to battle her. If she is serious about challenging me, then we shall spar as two warriors! Perhaps, I'll learn something new about combat from her.

So yes, generally, I disagree with her on many things, but I still respect her for bravery and inner fire."-Shawn Bjornson

"Bjornson is a beastly man that I rather not have the pleasure in coming into physical contact with, for fear of getting his stench of alcohol onto my clothing. That may as well be replaced with a new pair as I'm doubtful a power wash could remove it. Regardless, the barbarian is tolerable as there nothing that he can do to undermine my mission, and otherwise, ideological feuds are below me. Therefore as it can be concluded my stance is neutral."

"The only thing we can agree on is that technology and education is generally a good thing... but please for the good of both me and you stay FAR I mean FAR away from my country. We the people of Sherechia will not bow down to your commands and your authoritarian paternalistic conservative imperialist ideology. Like Stratocracy?! the military is the tool of the people to maintain liberty and independence not to rule us and social credit system? Are you gonna ban me from riding the train if I play too many video games late at night? Your people are probably used to it so we won't even try to liberate you, so just stay away from Sherechia, because attacking Sherechia is akin to eating a poisonous fugu."
