Nationstates General is Tumblr with good manners. It's a leftist circle-jerk and an echo chamber, with biased oversight.

The Moderators have, though, implemented a policy that causes all reported posts concerning America's election this year to be trawled ten pages back.

Yeah, we said that at the time too.

The guy claimed to be a doctoral candidate for religious philosophy and tried to browbeat the denizens of NSG into accepting the cosmological argument for God, along with several 'honest beliefs' that saw a lot of mod action for trolling.

Oh, right. Whoever mentioned the ever-present cliché that's even in my nation of a leader that turns a nation around, you are dead on. Bullseye is too much of a gray area. Eagleseye.

There also do seem to be a lot of UK nations. Kind of like a mini cliché.

Personally, excluding Minskiev, which is just more of a serious nation, I like making cursed or based nations. I'm thinking of doing a sort of Most Serene Republic of Venice, but it's in the Chinese Seas, and it's...a commune. Yeah, like a merchant commune. No idea how it's gonna work.

Anyways, to add to this conversation more, one more cliché:

The South.

...god, I've been self conscious about this now that you've brought it up whenever I go to GE&T. I didn't mean to be cliché, I just wanted to write about what I thought would be the mid century future of what I consider my home.

You've done a damn good job at it as far as I'm aware. Working with PODs of the past is one thing, forecasting sociocultural trends of the future is something else.

Really funny to see people saying NSG is leftist cirdejerking when most of this site is /pol/ with more opposition. Hence why I don't leave the RP forums much.

The United Socialist States of Shiatoru

A democratic socialist republic situated on an island-continent in the Pacific about the size of the US West Coast. Population of 52 million, mostly a mix of American and Japanese descent. Fervent and proud of their ideology. Does not use NS stats. MT with a low level of FanT that is designed to be ignored or embraced at the other party's discretion--think urban fantasy world.

It ain't /pol/. /pol/ is people running around shouting "DEATH TO THE JEWRY". I haven't seen that here, thank God.

The only nations I've seen do that get the banhammer pretty quickly, with the exception of two or three that everyone ignores.

Much like /pol/, NSG has a nasty habit of spilling outside of its containment

I feel like there's more people these days who complain about "space empires being everywhere" than there are actual space empire nations. FT-hate in general is honestly getting pretty tired at this point - sure, generic space empires with oversized militaries and no other distinct features are bad, but not only are they much less of a problem than they're made out to be, there's far more to FT in terms of worldbuilding potential than low-effort F7 posters flinging bombs around in the military game threads.

Yeah, I agree, I'm a space empire myself, and I try to make mine unique. I have a spacefleet, but it follows more of a quality over quantity doctrine, and it's not the focus of my nation. My nation is more akin of the Kerbals from KSP or the Sophons from Endless Space, wacky science-fellows.

That's a good point. I was thinking about making a military RP, but then I got bogged down in the details of "oh, everything has to be perfect and make sense and such and such" when other people just go "Ten thousand planes blow you the fuck up. You're dead boi headshot boom lol xd." And it's just... the criticism of "chonk FFT space empire" goes hand in hand with that, I see, because that sense of being anal about the numbers without actually creating anything of substance gets tied into the new technologies involved in creating an FT nation (which admittedly do require skill to not turn into military-wank), and all FT empires get colored with the same brush as a result, despite several of my favorite nations on here being FT space empires.

A cliché I've seen rather recently, regions having either absurd amounts of Regional Officers, or too many with almost absolute power.

Elections with a strangely large and accepted factor of foreign endorsement and assistance.

Yes, I'm guilty of this, I get it's for the sake of RP. Just funny with how that tends to go down irl.

Just one of the ways my future lore is super disappointing. I feel like doing a complete ground up rewrite because to me the Fracture of '36 lore just feels... off. Like I skipped over all the meat of the fortune telling and just kind of waved off all of the factors in making it what it is. It's all terrible.
