I didn't mean anything racist or discriminatory with that, I usually like to have a bit of fun with my friends. Plus, it's a little stereotypical, if you know what I mean. A good kind of traits. Ahh, anyway, about yourself, let's see. Yes, we have indeed met each other before, how have you been? I hope you have been fine these few days, yeah? I have read and have seen that you are a very good person, Mr. Walters. First and foremost, I hope I am not hitting on you, but anyone can see that you are quite a handsome fellow. Handsomeness on the outside, and beauty inside as well, for you have a very good heart, for instance using your own money to help rebuild your country. I also quite like the background story of the more progressive bits - yeah, I know, it's unfortunately something overused and common in the multiverse. I mean, it IS a good thing, but it's just being thrown in there usually for the sake of it, you know? You, on the other hand, have shown much more powerful decision-making and all that, even if it has gotten you into a bit of a backlash as I can see. Either way, my ramblings aside, I am very positive on you. Wishing you all the best, my man! One day, if your nation permits a stature of someone such as myself, literally... I would love to visit and play tourist!

In all my observation of the Mojave Wasteland, I have not once seen an actual, hereditary monarchy. Even Caesar's Legion is more of a dictatorship where succession is appointed, not inherited. Seeing a kingdom in a post-collapse wasteland fascinates me.

In any case, King Jerry's experience in war and combat is laudable. It's also good that his expenditure was so focused on helping the people after the war. Now, some might say that it's strange for me to praise the king's focus on doing so - allow me to explain: my government is focused on generating profit so that it may spend this profit on industry, agriculture, and preparing to colonize extraterrestrial planets. I don't spend any caps on fulfilling any hedonistic desires, because I am not a hedonist.

Back to the topic of Jerry: his near-elimination of organized crime in his kingdom is also impressive. My opinion of this royal is certainly positive.

I've been meaning to learn more about the Valentians. Now that I've had a chance to do so, I must say: how did they recover so quickly? Such a fast rebuilding after a nuclear apocalypse, at their point in history, with a 1990s level of technology, globalized all across their entire planet?

May I see how they did it?

Anyway, my opinion of the Valentians is quite positive. While his personal tactics during his time in the army don't make any sense, it's good for him that he has experience in battle. Rebuilding after a nuclear apocalypse is no easy feat, even if one has the technology that the Valentians apparently had access to. Furthermore, their economic policy is similar to mine, except instead of spending on various welfare and happiness programs like they do, I spend the caps that I acquire on rebuilding the Mojave. Furthermore, their peaceful nature ensures that they don't waste money on pointless conquests.

"There ain't no other way for Mr. House than to be an autocratic ruler, for his old and withered body is confined to a rather sophisticated life pod, which is directly hooked up to Lucky 38 mainframe. If he is ousted, no matter how peacefully, then it means certain death for him. So, he rules his city like a calculating Venetian Doge, maintaining flourishing trade and tourism, while fending off the factions, which threaten him. Interesting, how in terms of economy, he is just like us, promoted tourism and trade to bring money to the country. And yet, unlike us, he maintains freedoms out of pure pragmatism, rather than ideology. He doesn't follow any cause except his futuristic vision.

He thinks, that we just go and conquer, without any concern for logistics... But we ain't no fools, when it comes to expansion. If we were, we would have tried that thirty years ago, when we hadn't recovered from revolution. Instead, we have built an economic powerhouse, which also has a robust black market network.

As for our course of action... his tourism and gambling focuses make him our competitor, but there is much more to gain if we work with him, rather than against him. His city is an important trading hub in his region, and if we access it, we'll have another market for our goods. Now, I'll offer him a commercial deal to consider." -Shawn Bjornson.

"He's exactly what I feared would come out of Patagonia—a demagogue who takes advantage of anarchic chaos to place himself at the top of a new hierarchy. The Deng of Futurism really is a good description: he has all the rhetoric of accelerationist surrealism while ultimately being a retrenching, conservative mercantilist—er, no offense to my conservative colleagues in Baizou!

"Patagonia's futurist anarchy never sat well with me, but at least it was honest in its anarchy, sincere in its surrealism. Can Lombardi really trick himself into thinking that his vision for 'moderately fascist' authoritarianism bears any resemblance to futurism as taught by the Patron?

"...But maybe Lombardi really is sincere. And that's almost worse! If he really believes his vision is the true 'new futurism' then he's not just looking out for his self-interest. He's also on a crusade.

"How odd. If my sources are to be believed, there are other worlds with a island named Baizou-jima receiving heavy influences from our nation? Seeing their monarch be reduced to symbolic role is nothing new given the situation of our own Emperor at present, of course, but to find that the actual leaders of their nation are chosen by the people is indeed something surprising. I'm not quite sure what to make of this: can citizens- the uneducated masses- really be trusted to rule themselves? I suppose being able to remove undesirable leaders by peaceful means is preferable to our current situation at any rate, and yet... but I digress.

As for my personal commentary on Premier Fukushima? Premier Fukushima certainly appears to be quite able, skilled as she is in holding together those various factions that allow her to retain power- becoming Premier of Baizou less than 6 years after first entering halls of power as an ordinary official. Not only does she have great talent in creating alliances from opposing interests, she has also had success in convincing them to actually pass forward her desired reforms most of the time. I will not comment on those reforms themselves, since they appear to be of a world with circumstances far different from my own, and I find myself lacking the information to draw any conclusions. Nevertheless, I am impressed by Premier Fukushima's political shrewdness; in this area she has learned in her decade or so of serving as lawmaker more than many nobles and sovereigns come to understand in their entire lives."

-Ōmiya Sakura

"A monarch's role is to rule their country's citizens well and justly. Why, then, does Sovereign Oshiro shy away from his responsibilities? Unlike his mother-who appears to have been a more effective monarch- he rejects using the power he has to change his country towards his vision. Even worse, despite his effectiveness when he does use his powers, for some reason he leaves such work to lower officials except in rarest of circumstances. In my eyes, his only redeeming factor is his ability in international diplomacy. As someone who suffers from a rather short temper, I can at least admire his ability there.

You are the leader of your people, Sovereign Oshiro! Serve them well, and fulfill your duties to them and Baizou!"

--Ōmiya Sayuri

While I have yet to completely understand the woman and her personality, I must say kudos for such humanitarian actions."

The Avant-Gardist State of Patagonia ~~~ Gauchos and Mapuches, orgies and parties, avant-garde art, futurism, syndicalism, the New Man, general strikes, the glorification of violence, spiritual nationalism, esoteric occultism, CIA spooks, Spartanian homosexuality, public sodomy, and more

Triomphe du Surréalisme (1968)

- There are many things said about Patagonia but few actually know what goes on behind the Andes mountains. Tales of human depravation and man's inner darkest self run wild. A place where avant-garde culture flourish and the artist don't fear the censor. Where all live bold and free under the gaze of the Patron. Yet all dreams will come to an end soon...
- Not expecting an essay. Just a couple of sentences that shows that you know my work well enough

Yeah, realized that error just now. Confused SP with Corporatist Argentina. Have edited.

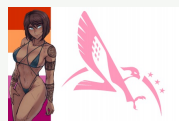

Though if you think about it people like Galeazzo just show how he's losing control of it all so it doesn't make all that much of a difference. Poor fucker might as well be dead for all he can stop what he's begun.

"Miss Ari is nice... I like her. She has the same name as my mum. Mummy doesn't like that. Mummy doesn't like lots of things. She can be very mean when she's not happy. Maybe if I'm nice to Miss Ari, Mummy will be nice to Miss Ari too! She is also very very cool! I have never seen a tribe-person before! Going wherever you want must be very nice. Mummy says I can't go wherever I want to. Miss Ari also has lots of talent. I want to be very talented too. I told Mummy that she and Miss Ari are very similar. Maybe she doesn't believe me but what if they were friends? That'd be very good! But... she is also quite scary. Why does Miss Ari always fight? Why can't she fight with kindness? And hugs?"

"I see, so this is the "child" of Amaki? If I may be so frank here: Amaki does not look like someone a man would marry and bear children with. But if Amara is here to be a balance; someone to balance out Amaki's vulgar behaviour with her positive character, then she is much better to speak about fondly than the Civil Dictator and the Military Dictator."

This is not funny and it is dark

General is this huge, uneducated, primitive shithole where everybody's an expert, and everybody has to share an opinion; and it's usually the result of people eating rotten alphabet soup, because people are just shitting out words that don't make sense. And don't get me started on Fo-

"...Hm. Well, I respect the fact that she shows more power than those idiot figureheads who would be better off on a guillotine. If a leader, monarch or not, actually exercises authority, I will prefer them infinitely to those who sit back for ceremonial purposes. Though...some of her logic confounds me. You've lost valuable men in a war and your army hardly remains, yet you want to 'regain lost territories'? The Third Reich tried that and they lost far worse than the Second did. Try to properly manage your country before you toss it into a war. For now...neutral."

What happens when you cross anime powers and overpowered leaders with furies, all written by a bored Homestuck fan with too much time? Well, you get Rumei. A multiethnic, FT republic with both might and magic that let it conquer the entire Orion Arm.

A 7.6 (this is probably outdated but I can't do the calculations rn) (Tier 9, Level 6, Type 9) according to this index.

Come to The Orion, we got CULTURE and FURRIES

Show Recommendation: Cobra Kai. It is very, very good.

IC Name: Roman Republic, or simply Rome (Rumei). Occasionally called the Ignisian Republic. Current year is 2697.
