Should be punishable by a little bit of 'rehabilitation' but considering that we are, in a way, gradually turning to fascism, we'll probably just overlook it.

Simply being opposed to US control of a territory isn't a crime per se, but if you start bombing cars, it'll be the capital punishment.

As a soldier, committing massacre?

Depending on how many people the soldier killed. If 2 - 10, 20 years or life in jail. If more, execution.

Attempt to commit suicide

Depends on the scale and the nature of the victims (was it POWs, civilians, enemy soldiers in combat, etc.) but it can go from "not a crime" to "dishonorable discharge" to "send him to the firing squad"... usually not the last one.

6 months - 6 years years in prison, fine up to damages which the victim is entitled to, permanently prohibited from using any motor vehicle. If committed without motor vehicle authorization, 1-8 years in prison. Judges usually are not lenient in these cases.

A fine if fishing without a license, a heavier fine for fishing in a protected area. Repeat offenses of fishing in a protected area would make it more difficult (or impossible) to get a license in the future.
